BALANCED BUDGET. SOUND BRITISH POSITION.

FLOATING DEBT REDUCTION.

London, Mar. 15.
Revenue returns issued to-night, giving the figures of receipts to last Saturday, leave no doubt that a balance Budget will be successfully realised.
During last week, the deficit was reduced by £12,800,000 and amounted at the end to £24,200,000 as compared with £34,100,000 on the same date last year.
The total receipts from inland Revenue taxes since 1st April last amount to £111,700,000 leaving £39,300,000 still to be collected to realise the revised budget estimate of £101,000,000.
Further receipts of £10,100,000 will bring the total of income tax and surtax up to the amount estimated to be received in the year.
Customs and Excise receipts are £34,400,000 up on last year, compared with an estimated increase in the whole year of £7,500,000.
Expenditure Down.
The total expenditure has amounted to £807,300,000 which is £24,700,000 less than that of the corresponding date of last year.
The revised budget contemplated a total reduction in the year of £16,200,000 but supplementary estimates of £500,000 have since been presented.
The floating debt was reduced in the week by £10,100,000 and now stands at £12,375,000, being £7,000,000 less than at the corresponding date last year.—British Wireless.

LINDBERGH BABY OUTRAGE.

POLICE FEAR MURDER.

New York, Mar. 15.
Fears that the baby son of Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh may be dead are apparently entertained by the police, who have circulated all keepers of incinerators in hotels and apartments and New York City institutions, to watch for parcels containing baby clothes.—Reuter.

DOLLAR AGAIN DECLINES.

REFLECTS FALL IN SILVER.

The Hongkong dollar is down 1/8th this morning, the quotation being 1s. 4d. The market is steady, but there is very little doing.
In London, silver declined 3/16th spot and forward. China and India sold, and the market closed steady.
New York reports a fall of a quarter, with the market dull.

GERMAN RECLUSE'S WILL.

USE AGAINST EUROPEANS.

HALF A MILLION STERLING.

London, Mar. 16.
An amazing bequest of a mysterious fortune to China, with an instruction that the money be employed "in the struggle against Europeans," is the feature of a story given considerable prominence in the London Morning Post today.
The fortune is estimated at about half a million sterling and the manner in which it came into the hands of the testator, an octogenarian German, formerly of the Prussian Guard, is the subject of much speculation.
The details are disclosed by the Morning Post's correspondent in Rome, who says that representatives of the Chinese Republic in Rome have gone to Bresciana to take possession of the money.
It has been bequeathed to China by Herr Heinrich Basse, with the instruction indicated.

APPARENT POVERTY.

Herr Basse died in apparent poverty, but a steel box was found in his room containing title deeds, bank books, a letter of good wishes from the ex-Kaiser on the occasion of his eightieth birthday last year, and a signed photograph of the will and a document showing that Herr Basse served in the Prussian Guard.
It is suggested that the fortune represents special Secret Service funds of the late German Imperial authorities.—Reuter.

COMMISSION OF NINETEEN.

MEETING TO-DAY AT GENEVA.

Geneva, Mar. 15.
A meeting of the special League Commission of nineteen—composed of M. Hymans, President of the Assembly, the twelve members of Council, other than China and Japan, and six of the smaller States—appointed to deal with the Sino-Japanese dispute, is holding a meeting at 3.30 p.m. to-morrow (Wednesday).—Reuter.

FORCED LABOUR PRODUCTS.

PROPOSED BAN BY BRITAIN.

London, Mar. 15.
In the House of Commons today, under the ten-minute rule, Commander Locker Lampson was given leave to introduce a bill to prohibit the importation of goods made by foreign forced labour.
The Bill was brought in and formally read a first time.—British Wireless.

A DREAM OF UTOPIA.

BRITAIN & FRENCH DISARMAMENT SCHEME.

London, Mar. 15.
Sir Philip Sassoon, the Under-Secretary of State for Air, gave the House of Commons what is apparently the first official hint of the Government's attitude towards the French disarmament proposals at Geneva.
It will be recalled that Mr. Tardieu presented a programme whereby all offensive armaments should be handed over to the control of the League of Nations.
Sir Philip Sassoon asked: Have we sufficient confidence in any international body to place in its hands the safety of the British Empire or of eight millions of Londoners?

DEATH OF NOTED EXPLORER.

Tragic End to Asia Expedition.

M. HAARDT'S CAREER.

We have to record with deep regret, the death of M. Georges-Marie Haardt, the leader of the French Scientific and Artistic Expedition across Asia, who passed away quietly at the Repulse Bay Hotel in the early hours of this morning.
M. Haardt while in Shanghai contracted influenza, which developed into pneumonia. His health had been greatly undermined by the hardships endured during his recent journey across the Asiatic continent, which was carried out under very difficult conditions.
Sahara Journey.
M. Haardt was a noted explorer. He was the first to cross the Sahara desert in 1922-23 by enterprising cars, an exploration journey which opened Sahara desert for motor communications.
In 1924-25 he was the leader of the "Black Cruise," an expedition over the African continent.
His last expedition across Asia was undertaken with the support of the French Government and under the patronage of several scientific and artistic institutions and also with the support of the National Geographic Society of Washington.
The death of Georges-Marie Haardt is a great loss to France and the whole scientific world. He was a Commander of the Order of the Legion d'Honneur.

CLEARING HOUSE SYSTEM.

OF NO ADVANTAGE TO BRITAIN.

London, Mar. 15.
Mr. Walter Runciman was questioned in the House of Commons today as to the proposed Franco-Hungarian agreement to provide a Clearing House arrangement for mutual liquidation of the export trade, and said that after full consideration the Government had reached the conclusion that such a Clearing House system, yet devised would be of advantage to British trade. He did not think any such system would eliminate the handicap of exchange restrictions in existence on the continent.—British Wireless.

AGITATION FOR TEA DUTY.

GOVERNMENT NOT IN FAVOUR.

London, Mar. 15.
In the House of Commons today, following further agitation for an Empire Tea Preference, Mr. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, announced that the increase in tea imports in January and February were almost wholly due to imports from India and Ceylon.
In any event, he had no power to apply the provisions of the Abnormal Importations Act to the importations of tea.—Reuter.

THE BOAT RACE.

SHORTER THAN USUAL.

London, Mar. 15.
The University Boat Race will be rowed on Saturday morning over a course about 400 yards shorter than usual.
Owing to the structural alterations on the bridge, which cause violent currents at the usual starting point, the authorities at a conference to-day agreed that the race should begin at a point opposite the London Rowing Club and that the finish should be at the usual post at Mortlake.—British Wireless.

Amongst the passengers who left by the Blue Funnel liner Sarpedon for Home were Mr. and Mrs. R. E. O. Bird, Mr. E. J. Dowley, and Mr. G. G. N. Tinson.

The present stage of progress in the construction of the Hongkong pier for the vehicular ferry service is shown in the photograph above.

THE VEHICULAR FERRY.

CONTRACTS NOT YET SIGNED.

BIG ORDER FOR ENGLAND.

That the institution of a vehicular ferry between Hongkong and Kowloon will by 1933 be an accomplished fact is indicated by the recent revelation that the Hongkong and Yau-mat Ferry Company has successfully tendered for the service.
It was stated this morning that no indication can at the present be given as to the amount of the tender, as the contracts have not yet been signed.
It is understood, however, that an order has been placed with the Hongkong and Whampoa Dock Company for the building of three boats, but the cost of this work cannot yet be divulged.
It is further stated that an order has been given to Messrs. Dodwell and Company for the supply of Gardner engines for the vessels, and that this firm has despatched an order to England for the supply of these and other equipment to the value of £200,000.
The ferry service will, if possible, commence operations as from January 1st, 1933, and the Government is granting the exclusive maintenance thereof for a period of fifteen years from that date.
The Routes.
The ferries are to run between Jubilee Street Pier and Jordan Road Pier; Jubilee Street Pier and Mongkok Pier; and Jubilee Street Pier and Shamshu Pier.
It is laid down, under the terms of the tender, that the licensing of any other ferries, between any of the mentioned frontages, or between one of the mentioned frontages and some other frontage, will not infringe on the licence's rights, and he can make no claim in respect of any other such ferry.

OLD POLICE PENSIONER.

EX-SERGEANT MAJOR SUCCUMBS.

An old pensioner of the Chinese contingent of the Hongkong Police Force passed away at his residence at 68, Main Street, Aberdeen, yesterday afternoon in the person of Chan Sik-cheung, formerly a sergeant major in the Force.
The late Chan Sik-cheung was about 65 years of age and first joined the police in 1885. Through the usual channels of promotion he attained the rank of sergeant major and in June, 1930, was invalided out after 35 years' service.
He was a very popular officer and was highly respected by his superiors and subordinates alike.

London, Mar. 15.
"We propose to remove the Oath of Allegiance," declared President de Valera in the Dail to-day.
We have a mandate to remove it, he said, and we want every section of the community to be able to send representatives to the Dail without having to coerce their consciences by taking the Oath.
The statement was made in reply to a question regarding the release of Republican prisoners.
The Dail afterwards adjourned until April 20.

WARDER AGAIN MISSING.

For the second time within a week, E. C. Pearce, a warder of Victoria Gaol, is reported to be missing. He first absented himself from the Government Civil Hospital, where he was a patient, on Friday last, but on Sunday evening he returned, having been to Canton.
According to a report made to the police late last night, Pearce is again missing and the police have been requested to keep a look-out for him.

SINGAPORE BASE.

ANXIETY AT THE ADMIRALTY.

London, Mar. 15.
The Admiralty is growing anxious about the construction of the Singapore Base, where the state of affairs is not at all satisfactory. The problem is now engaging the earnest attention of the First Lord of the Admiralty.
This statement was made in the House of Commons to-day by Captain D. Euan Wallace, the Civil Lord of the Admiralty, in the course of debate on the Navy Estimates.

JACKSON CONTRACT NOT ENOUGH.

Captain Wallace explained that although £7,750,000 appeared in the Estimates, the Government's present commitments were £4,036,000 to the contractors, Sir T. Jackson, Limited, but if only the work under the Jackson contract was completed there would be no satisfactory naval base.
The contractors were making excellent progress and there was no reason to suppose that the firm's work would not be finished when it was due, namely, in 1935.

ADMIRALTY ANXIETY.

The financial stringency of the past few years had, however, placed us in such a position that we had not got the plans made for the construction of a fully-equipped and up-to-date Base at Singapore.
Hence, said Captain Wallace, the Admiralty's anxiety.—Reuter.

THE FAILURE OF CAPITALISM.

THE REV. E. L. ALLEN'S
INDICTMENT.

ROTARY TALK.

A strong indictment against present-day capitalism was made by the Rev. E. L. Allen, M.A., Ph.D., Ductor of Kowloon Union Church, when he delivered an extremely thought-provoking address at yesterday's Rotary Club luncheon, held at Messrs. Lane Crawford's Restaurant, under the chairmanship of Sir William Hornell.

After pointing out the disastrous results of economy and rationalization, the speaker suggested the dire necessity for economic planning, first on the national and then on the international scale; planning designed to ensure that consumption kept pace with production and that the process of putting goods on the market did, at the same time, give people power to buy them.

He concluded by saying, "I see nothing in Christianity which should make it more opposed to communism than to capitalism. The future of civilization depends. I would suggest, on our ability to effect a reconciliation between the ideal of individual liberty on the one hand and the new economic forces on the other, which are at work in Soviet Russia."

New Members.

The following new members were welcomed: Dr. R. A. de Castro, Dr. M. M. Manuk and Mr. E. M. Goodall.

Non-Rotarian visitors welcomed were: Mr. J. H. Flight, Lieutenant R. M. Trevathan, M.C., H.M.S. Hermes, Mr. W. J. Handyside (Hongkong), Mr. J. Ehrhardt (Shanghai), and Dr. F. S. Tsang (Shanghai).

The Chairman welcomed the following Rotarian guests: Mr. T. Fox (Bangkok), Mr. C. J. McCarthy (Shanghai), Mr. H. Macgown (Shanghai), Mr. H. Sander (Shanghai), Mr. A. Shatter (Singapore), and Mr. C. E. Schroeder (Liege, Belgium).

Mr. Fox said that the President of the Bangkok Club had asked him to convey his personal greetings to Hongkong Rotarians whom he met about a year ago; also the greetings of the Bangkok Club to the Hongkong Club, with the hope that in the future it might be possible for the two Clubs to get into closer contact.

Dr. Allen's Address.

The speaker said:—If I were to choose a sub-title for my remarks, I think it would be "After Capitalism—what?" During the last hundred and fifty years the western world lived to an increasing extent under the influence of the capitalist system; to-day that system is approaching the point of disintegration and the future of our civilization depends on whether or not we have the wisdom and courage to put a better one in its place. During its reign of a century and a half, the capitalist system has brought many benefits; it has improved communications, popularized knowledge, raised the standard of life and given to the masses a degree of personal comfort unknown previously outside the privileged classes.

Ominous Signs of Disaster.

But perhaps it might be a little nearer the truth to say that most of these benefits have been wrung from capitalism by the organized action of the workers, backed by the conscience of the community in the form of state interference. To-day this vast and imposing edifice gives ominous signs of impending disaster; it is threatened alike from within and without. It has shown itself to be utterly unable to meet the needs of the world situation in which we find ourselves, and it is being challenged in an altogether new way by the fact that Russia has set out to show the world that there is an alternative to it.

There are many counts in the indictment which the times in which we live are bringing against the capitalist system, but I will content myself with a brief reference to three of these.

To begin with, capitalism has failed where failure on the part of an economic system is unpardonable. It has literally failed to deliver the goods. The task of an economic order is not merely to make goods on a large scale and at low prices, but to sell them, and to do that it must see that the people have money with which to buy the goods. The money is just what they have not got. There is a shortage, not of goods nor even of people who would like to possess them, but of purchasing power in the hands of those who want the goods.

Here, it seems to me that Mr. J. A. Hobson's analysis is as sound as any. In a time of industrial prosperity wealth tends to accumulate in the hands of the investing class, who use it to buy machinery to make goods and yet more goods. But too small a proportion of the national income has gone into the hands of the wage-earners and others who want to buy these goods, so that they have not the purchasing power to take them off the market. Hence these periods of glatted markets and unemployed workers, of poverty amid plenty, through one of which we are passing to-day.

Bankrupt of Ideas.

In the second place, I see in capitalism a bankruptcy of ideas. It has no remedies to offer except such as would make the disease worse even than it is. The two remedies which it proposes are economy and rationalization.

Economy has been tried especially in Germany; Mr. J. M. Keynes tells us that no country has ever accepted such a regime of hardship and sacrifice as she has imposed upon herself. And to what end? In spite of all the reduction in wages, the drop in prices, the acceptance of a lower standard of living, and the suspension of trade union regulations—or perhaps because of all these things—business remains at a standstill and the misery of the people only increases.

Rationalization is equally disastrous. As it is practised, for example, by the railway companies and other great combines in England, it deliberately aims at dispensing with labour and so at adding to the volume of unemployment and poverty in the country.

If, as I have urged, what is wrong is shortage of purchasing power, then any policy which further diminishes that power, as by wage-reduction, increases in the worst of living, or taxation of the lower level of incomes, only serves to aggravate the problem.

Enemy of Human Freedom.

The third charge against capitalism is of a different order. It has always made a certain moral claim; it has claimed to be the one way in which individual initiative and enterprise can be encouraged. The capitalist, as it exists to-day, is the enemy of human freedom and has given us the slave state in one of its worst forms. The great industrial countries give the people democratic institutions and the semblance of power, but the reality of it is elsewhere with impersonal economic forces. The reason why men do not rebel to-day is that the enemy is a thing rather than a person. You cannot raise an army against the cold standard or the rate of exchange or the price-level, but these are the masters of our destiny.

I was tempted at one stage to give way to force of habit and take a text. I have not done so, but I will read you the words I might have chosen for that purpose. They are the words of an American economist, Professor Douglas.

Ills of Capitalism.

"If mankind must go through such great periodical crises, if men must starve because there is too much food, go naked because there is too much clothing, and sleep in the parks because there is too much housing, then the masses of sensible men and women will create a new economic system whose governing principle will be something other than that of comparative margins of private profit. In short, if capitalism does not reduce unemployment, mankind, which is fast weaning itself from feudalism, will abolish capitalism and replace it with a less clumsy and a more perfectly co-ordinated economic system."

The important words there are the last ones, "A less clumsy and a more perfectly co-ordinated economic system." Capitalism is anarchy, the blind hope that the chaos of competing units of the market will lead us, sooner or later, to beggary. But there is an alternative and what that is Russia has shown us.

Russia's Lesson.

The new idea which we can learn from Russia is not communism—that may or may not have value for us—but just the conception of economic planning, of the deliberate control of the economic forces which operate within the borders of a country for the common good of its people. Russia's plan is for Russia only, of course, and any plan which other countries might adopt would have to be framed with their own conditions in view.

But the idea of a Five Years Plan has come to stay. Let there be a scheme drawn up by the best brains the country can command; let it have in view every aspect of the problem—the production of consumption and capital goods, the provision of credits, the education of technicians, the housing of the people and so on, and let every section of industry, instead of going off on its own in search of private profit, be so directed that it will contribute its quota to the common prosperity, with the minimum of waste or over-lapping. We have too long allowed economic forces to control us. The time has come when we must assert our right to control them and make them serve us by building for us a better social order.

New State Needed.

Let me anticipate one objection. I said a while ago that individual liberty withered under capitalism. Is not that also true of Soviet Russia? Certainly it is true; and yet I suggest that, in this Russia's guilt is less than ours, for she never benefited as we have done by those two great movements, the Renaissance and the Reformation, which taught us the supreme worth of personality and its right to self-expression.

But the fact remains that for those who believe that individuality is the spring of all progress and that a society is to be judged by the room it gives to the development of the individual, there is no satisfaction in the communist, any more than in the capitalist state. We need a new kind of state, in which the social control of economic forces and the freedom of the individual can co-exist.

Not a Death-Menace.

Lord Lothian, on his return last year from Russia, said he was convinced that what he saw there was not a death-menace to civilization but the possibility of its re-birth. But it is not easy for us to learn from a nation which we have so long regarded as the common enemy of mankind. Yet we must learn this lesson of the dire necessity for economic planning, first on the national and then on the international scale; planning designed to ensure that consumption keeps pace with production, that the process of putting goods on the market does at the same time give the people the power to buy them.

Perhaps few convictions are more deeply-rooted to-day in the minds of the ruling, the possessing, and the educated classes throughout the world than that there is a relation of necessary antagonism between the religious and moral tradition of western Europe and the economies of Soviet Russia. I believe that this is a great mistake.

I see nothing in Christianity which should make it more opposed to communism than to capitalism, for example. The future of civilization depends, I would suggest, on our ability to effect a reconciliation between the ideal of individual liberty on the one

THE DIOCESAN CONFERENCE.

BISHOP OF VICTORIA
REVIEWS POSITION.

A survey of the work done in the Diocese during the last twelve years, this being the length of his term of office in Hongkong, was given by the Bishop of Victoria when presiding for the last time at the Diocesan Conference, which commenced at St. John's Cathedral Hall yesterday evening. The conference is a two-day event and will be continued this evening.

His Lordship referred to the diminution of foreign clergy, saying that the Chinese Church, at the present time, unquestionably needed the assistance of western clergy. He added that what gave him most anxiety was the decrease in the number of foreign missionary clergy serving in the Diocese.

He further said that where definite progress did seem to have been made was in the matter of building, and although he did not claim credit for any of those developments, some of which were done before he became Bishop, it had been a great encouragement to witness such growth and the splendid work done by many people in securing those results.

Officials Elected.

The Rev. L. N. Watkins who was not present owing to illness, was re-elected Honorary Secretary, and Mr. Paul Barker was elected Treasurer. Messrs. Thomson and Company were elected auditors.

The following were elected to the Executive Council, the Bishop, The Dean, the Honorary Secretary and Treasurer being ex-officio members. Clergy, Revs. C. I. Blanchett, G. K. Carpenter, N. V. Halward, W. W. Rogers and G. T. Waldegrave. Lay Representatives, St. John's Cathedral, Lady Pollock, Professor L. Forster and Sir Henry Pollock, K.C.

St. Andrew's Church, Mr. J. W. Baldwin and Mr. J. H. Hunt, O.B.E.

St. Peter's Church, Mr. R. Ashton Hill and Miss R. Mow Fung. The budget for 1932, which calls for an estimated expenditure of $8,230 was accepted.

Veuillez agréer, Monsieur le Directeur, les assurances de ma considération très distinguée. Le Consul Général de France, G. D. DE LA PRADÉ.

The Club's Thanks.

In expressing the Club's thanks to the speaker, Rotarian D. M. Hayward said he thought on the whole, that he agreed with nearly everything that the Rev. Allen had told them, and expressed the hope that the speaker might be able to extend his subject further on a future occasion.

FLATULENCE IN BABIES.

First and foremost among the troubles of babyhood are digestive derangements, usually manifested by distressing attacks of flatulence. Besides the mal-nutrition, there is always danger of convulsions if the child is unable to expel the accumulation of gas in the stomach.

In order to ensure normal digestion you should give Baby's Own Tablets, the remedy specially prepared for babies and all children up to six. These pleasant-tasting little tablets, which can be given without trouble, are invaluable for correcting stomach and bowel troubles generally. Baby's Own Tablets are also rapidly effective for breaking up colds, relieving croup, checking diarrhoea and allaying feverishness. During teething the tablets are especially valuable, for their settling effect on the stomach removes the cause of the pains, and thus enables baby to enjoy health-giving sleep. Baby's Own Tablets are guaranteed to contain no narcotics or other harmful drugs, but comprise the prescription of a qualified medical practitioner of special experience in children's ailments. All chemists and stores can supply you.

Trains are scarce and fighting men are plentiful in China. It was in this way that 30,000 Chinese troops were rushed recently from Nanking.

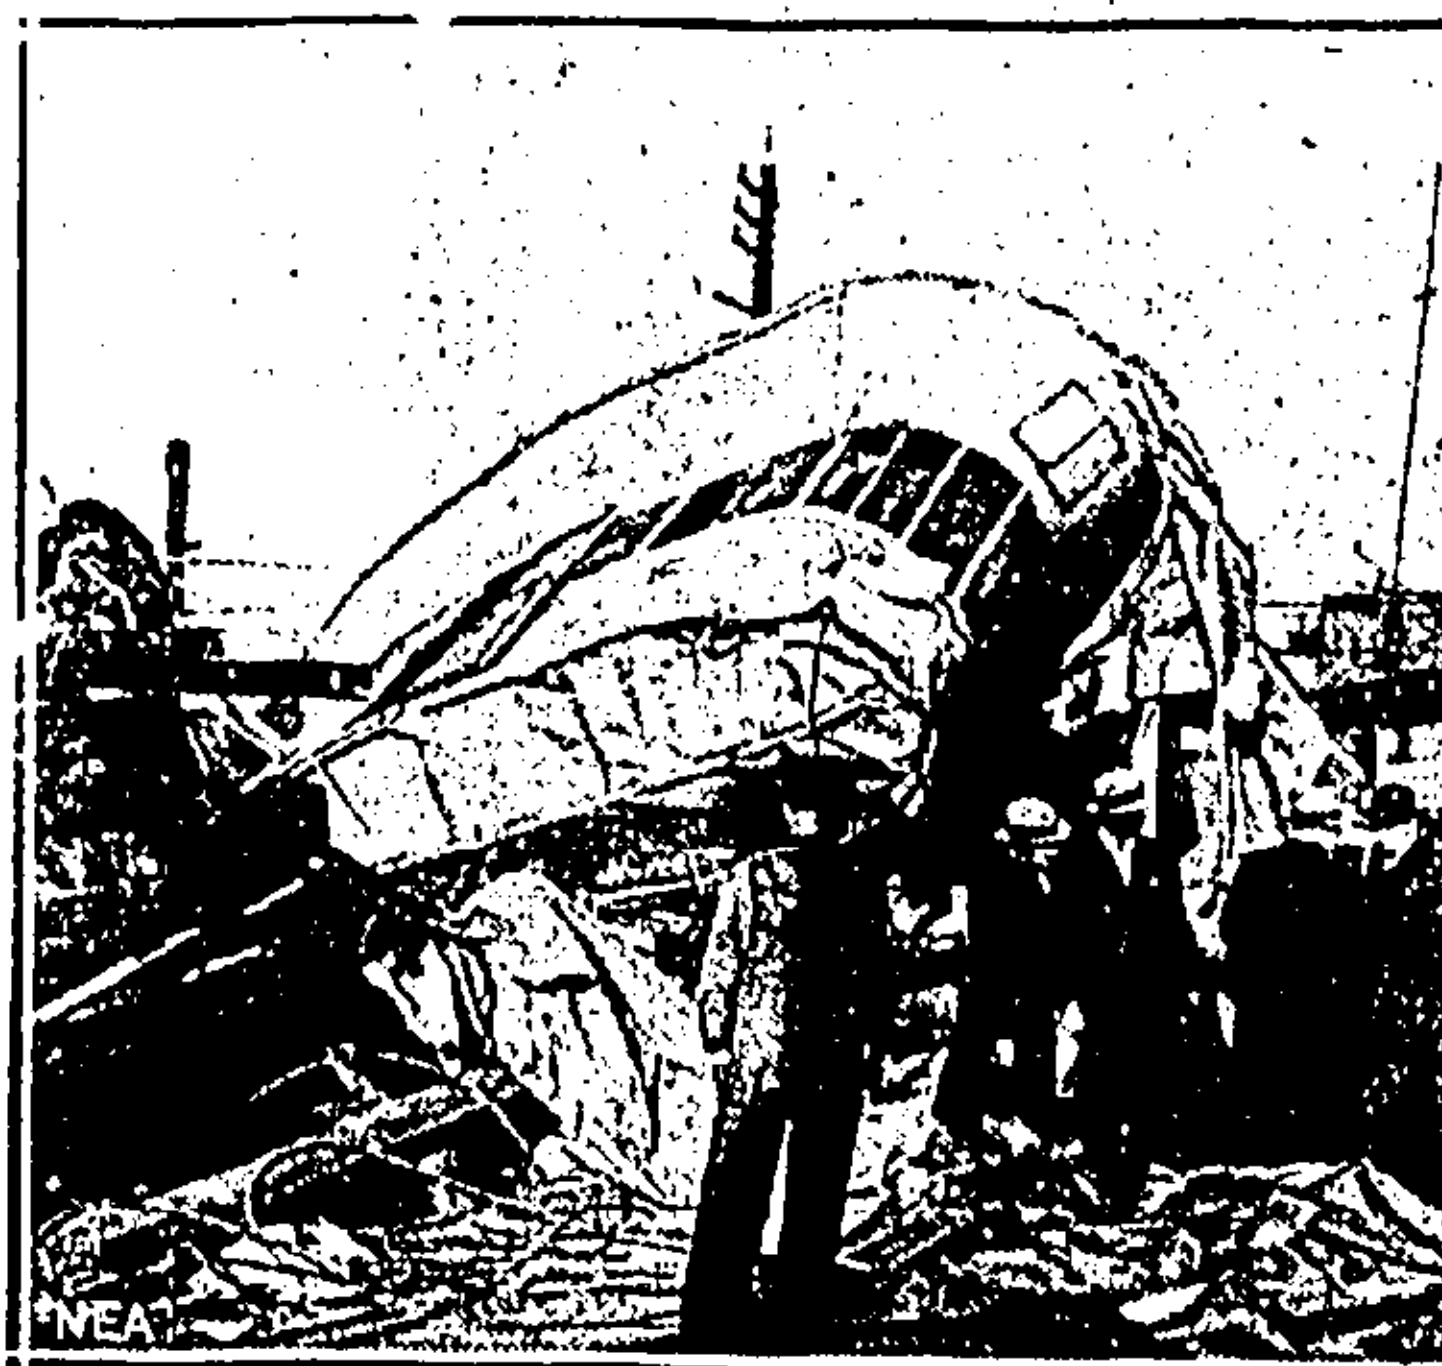

The spectacular blaze that lighted up the famous Atlantic City Broadway while the Steeplechase Amusement Pier burned is vividly shown in this night photo. Though firemen fought to check the flames, the high building was almost completely destroyed at an estimated loss of $500,000.

Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon aren't the stars in this picture. The young lady on the left, who is just five months old and whose name is Barbara Bebe Lyon, was the featured person. The picture was made just before the Lyons had their young daughter christened at a Hollywood church.

THREE KINDS OF LOVE

by KAY CLEAVER STRAHAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Ann, Cecily and Mary Frances Fenwick live with their grandmothers. The Fenwicks have been orphaned since childhood. The grandmothers, known as "Auntie" and "Grandma," have long since lost their wealth and the household is supported by Ann's and Cecily's earnings. For this reason Ann, 25, and Philip Fenwick, young lawyer, are still postponing their marriage though they have been engaged 8 years.

Cecily, 22, is in love with Barry McKel, an engineer, but when he proposes she refuses to marry the wealthy man. He uses all his money to buy Ann with the financial responsibility of the home.

Mary Frances, 15, and still in school, attracts an acquaintance with Earl Le Armout, a young actor, who meets him secretly and he tries to persuade her to become his stage partner.

Phil takes Ann to dinner. A girl who has never seen a better meal than a home. This explanation is vague. On the way home Phil stops the car to investigate engine trouble. Cecily, who wrote the note, and Kenneth Smith, her escort, come along in another car. Cecily, who is with the engine trouble and Ann, who is in the car and asks him to take her home. Next day he sends flowers.

CHAPTER XXXI

Cecily had looked up the number in the telephone book on Friday, the day before yesterday. She knew it by heart. She dialed it with icy, trembling fingers. The muted ringing sounded again and again in her ears. She prayed, "Let him answer it. Dear Lord, let him answer it. Let him answer it. Let him—"

"Hello?" A woman's voice, agreeable, cheerful.

"May I please speak to Mr. McKel?"

"Mr. McKel is playing golf. A note of interest was added. 'I am Mrs. McKel; may I take a message for him?'"

"I mean—Mr. Barry McKel."

"Barry?" The interest changed to amusement, faint but audible. "He isn't in town now."

"Oh, I didn't know. Where is he?"

"He is in Albany. Cheer up again, almost hearty. 'He has been there—let me see—since Friday.'"

"I—I didn't know. Do you expect him back soon?"

"No. Not very soon," sympathy was added. "He is superintending the work on a building that his uncle is putting up there."

"Could you give me his address?"

"I am sorry," sincerity seemed to be indicated. "But when he telephoned yesterday he said that he was leaving the hotel and would find a boarding place to-day. So, just for the moment, I don't know where he is. We'll know in a day or so; if you'll call again I'll be glad to tell you."

A day or so! There could be no answer to that.

Curiosity came at last, with a touch of elation. "Is it seriously important? My husband had spoken of driving to Albany this evening. He had given it up. But, perhaps—"

"No," said Cecily, and tried again and said, "No—thank you," and hung up the receiver and went upstairs to her room and darkened it to shut out anything the June month might have to offer, and rolled down into the deep hollow of her bed.

Ann found her there when she came in at seven o'clock that evening, purposely early, from boating with Kenneth.

"Cissy, honey," she protested, and stooped to put her arms around her. "You didn't hear from him? But dear, dear, you can't—you mustn't do this way."

"Sister's sweetheart! He'll come back. But you can't do this way. You're ill already. You're wearing yourself out. You could make it easier, dear. If you'd just go on with life the best you can. We have to live, you know."

"Why do we?"

"Lots of reasons. Mother and Father gave us life—trusted us with it—a part of their lives. And there is Mary Frances, and—"

"We didn't ask for the gift. I don't want it. Life is too horrible. It cheats us. Takes us and hurts us—so. I'm afraid of life. If Barry came back, if he were sitting where you are, right now—I'd still be afraid of life."

"Always I'll be afraid after this."

"I shouldn't have left you, honey. I shouldn't have. I didn't want to go, and I didn't enjoy myself, and—"

"I made you go. I'm better alone. Please go now, won't you, Ann? Please go. You—you make me nervous."

"No, I don't. I shouldn't have believed you this afternoon. And I don't believe you now." She lay down on the bed, and Cecily stiffened under her curving arm.

"I hate everything!" she declared.

"You don't hate me," Ann said. "You couldn't, when I love you such a lot."

"Who said I did?" said Cecily, and began to cry softly.

"Just let me rest and talk to you a little while," Ann coaxed. "If I make you too nervous, you can push me off. But, Cissy, I've been thinking a lot. All about life being horrid and hurting and everything. It is—and it does, of course, sometimes. But not all the time. In a way, too, it is sort of up to us how much we'll allow it to hurt us."

Cecily shook her head; shook her body. "No. No. No. No."

"Well, but it is. And here's something else. Life gives us lots of pleasant things—but it won't always allow us to pick and choose for ourselves. There's love. I don't know about men—but women have to have love. Only—I've decided that they don't have to have men's love. There are so many different sorts of love, and I believe—or try to believe," she amended truthfully, "that lots of the sorts are better, surer—happier, anyway, than the love between men and women. Take our love, Cissy, for each other and for Mary Frances. We've always had it, so we don't always appreciate it. But, honey, stop and think if you can what it amounts to. It is certain. It is safe. Nothing can change it or hurt it, and it will last forever. Before I'd hurt you—as you're hurt now—I'd take myself to pieces and cook me, as I'm hurt now, not even to have Barry again. But these men, these mean men hurt us, and break our hearts, and go away and stay away and let us be hurt and suffer. Why should we accuse life of hurting us when it is only men, mean men who hurt us? And why should we value that love, men's love—old hateful, hurting, selfish love—so highly?"

"I don't know. I just want Barry, want to love him—whether he loves me or not. I want to see him—hear his voice. I can't live, I can't breathe without him. I can't, and I don't want to, and I won't try."

"You think that way now, but you'll find out later that you can. Someway you—you got used to it. I thought that way too, last month. That Sunday, Cissy—truly I was out of my mind, almost. I had a strange obsession that I was dead—like the stories one reads, you know—and didn't know that I was dead, and was just walking around watching myself. But that passes off. Truly it does, honey. Truly it does. See how much better I am now? And it has only been a month ago to-day. Just exactly a month ago to-day."

"Ann, I don't want to be hateful. But Barry and I were—are—I will say Barry and I are—are—are—"

"Yes, darling. Of course. What are you?"

"We are different from you and Phil. In every way. Do you think, for instance, that I'll ever look at another man? Do you think that I could do as you've done? I don't want you, but I mean I couldn't. I couldn't start right out to play, with another man as you've started to play with that funny Kenneth thing. I couldn't. I wouldn't."

"That's just like saying, Cissy, honey, that if you were in one of these tropical places, being devoured by mosquitoes and bugs and things, you'd sit down and let them eat you alive because you couldn't and wouldn't use a shoddy, inferior grade of netting to keep them off."

Cecily cried a little more and said, "No, Ann—you don't understand. You don't understand."

"I try to, dear. I do try to. I wish you had come with us this afternoon, as I begged you to, instead of staying in this stuffy old house. The river was lovely, and we swam—"

THIS NUDIST NONSENSE.

When the local nudist movement was first mooted, there was a general inclination to treat it rather as a subject for humour than to be taken seriously. Now, however, that it is beginning to assume concrete form, there is a widespread feeling, with which we are in entire sympathy, that it is high time the authorities indicated their displeasure at the idea. We take our stand purely on the ground that much harm to public morality can be done by granting facilities to a movement which has many objectionable features. In saying so much, we do not deny that sun-bathing and open-air exercises in the nude can be wholly beneficial, but to concede so much is one thing, whilst to admit either the necessity or the desirability of the sexes mixing collectively for such purposes is quite another.

So far as we can gather, the Government has not yet defined its attitude on the subject, holding that the matter does not call for decision unless and until application is made for a site on which the cult may be practised. On the other hand, it is stated that the Superintendent of Crown Lands has held out hopes to the sponsors of the movement that there should be no difficulty in securing the use of a beach in some outlying part of the Colony. How far he reflects the official viewpoint remains to be seen. The general public, however, if we are to judge from expressions of opinion heard on all hands, entertains the hope that the Government will, without much further ado, prevent the possibility of the movement going beyond the bounds of strictly private observance. Indeed, it is open to question whether the authorities could, without amendment of the existing law, albanate for the purpose of mixed nudism any of the beaches of the Colony, no matter where they may be situated. In decent exposure, "by bathing or otherwise near any public place or dwelling house" is an infringement of the Summary Offences Ordinance. The term "public place" is so comprehensively defined for the purposes of the Ordinance as to include "all piers, thoroughfares, streets, roads, lanes, alleys, courts, squares, archways, passages, paths, ways and places to which the public have access either continuously or periodically, whether the same are the property of the Crown or private persons." It might be urged, of course, that a beach at some outlying spot is not a place to which the public ordinarily has access, but the fact remains that the public would have a right to visit such a spot, and, what is more, that it would be difficult to hide it from the gaze of people afloat. There is, moreover, the further point that, once the centre became known, persons of questionable moral tastes, of whom some are to be found in every community, would be attracted thereto, thus making it a centre which would, however much the devotees of the cult might resent the fact, have morally unhealthy reactions.

We are fully acquainted with all the stock arguments in favour of the movement; they do not impress us, especially in view of the emphasis which is being laid locally on the mixed character of the cult. There are in numerous parts of the world establishments where sun-bathing and other forms of nudism are practised, but with no mixing of the sexes, and under conditions which ensure the utmost privacy. If the local movement were of such a nature, no possible objection could be taken to it. But it is something totally different. The fact that mixed Naked Culture is permitted in certain parts of the world is neither here nor there. Against that we place the more compelling fact that Hongkong does not want to be associated with such a crazy fad. We may be old-fashioned, but we prefer to err, if at all, on the side of the proprieties. Not so long ago, at least two separate cases came before our magistrates in which coolies enjoying a bath in a public place were fined for indecent exposure. In each instance, if we remember rightly, the men were alone. Yet they were held to have broken the law. If these convictions rested on a belief that public susceptibilities were outraged, what shall we say of the effects of a movement, both on the participants and on others who may be made aware of its activities, which seeks to establish mixed nudism on an organised scale in our midst?

Everybody's Hobby.

Although Mr. George Eastman whose tragic death was reported yesterday, could not claim to be the inventor of photography, few would question his right to a foremost place among the modern pioneers of the art. France celebrated the centenary of photography in July, 1925, commemorating the fact that in 1825, M. Joseph Nicéphore Niépce invented the Ectenograph. In 1924, a memorial tablet was unveiled at the Royal Photographic Society, London, to the "Father of Photography," Henry Fox Talbot, who produced a permanent negative on paper in 1839. To these rival claims must be added those of Josiah Wedgwood and Sir Humphrey Davy, who obtained results by coating paper with a solution of silver nitrate prior to 1802. There may be cited, too, the invention of the Camera Obscura, ancestor of the modern Kodak, by J. D. Porta, in the year 1569, and it is worth recording that the first lens was discovered in the ruins of Nineveh and is now in the British Museum. For over fifty years from the production of the first negative, "photography" remained a mysterious art practised by professional specialists and a few amateurs whose enthusiasm carried them over the difficulties of the process. Outdoor photography was a toilsome and tedious exercise. The travelling outfit, for instance, included a bulky view camera, heavy tripod, equally heavy and burdensome plates, a dark tent for loading and sensitizing plates before exposure, a nitrate bath, and even a water barrel. Mr. George Eastman, by his invention of the flexible roll

DAY BY DAY

IT HE DOES REALLY THINK THAT THERE IS NO DISTINCTION BETWEEN VIRTUE AND VICE, WHY, SIR, WHEN HE LEAVES OUR HOUSES LET US COUNT OUR SPONS.—Samuel Johnson.

The staff and pupils of Quarry Bay School have issued invitations for the Spring Festival to be held at the school on Wednesday, March 23, at 11 a.m.

The President of the St. Patrick's Society of Hongkong, assisted by members of the Committee, will lay a wreath on the Cenotaph to-morrow, March 17, at 9.15 a.m.

The calendar of the University of Hongkong for 1932 has been published and is now on sale. The calendar includes interesting information concerning the University, and full particulars of all the faculties. According to the calendar, the present enrolment is about 350, of whom 280 are Chinese, and 40 are women.

The Dutch steamer Thengara, which arrived in Hongkong yesterday from Sourabaya, had a very eventful voyage according to a report made at the Harbour Office by the master, Captain Wille. According to the report, one Chinese passenger died, and another jumped overboard, but prompt measures were taken by the crew and he was rescued. Twins were born to a Chinese woman passenger. One was still-born and the other died about two hours later.

Banished last Saturday night to Canton for a period of ten years, a young Chinese who returned to the Colony almost immediately after was arrested yesterday morning and brought before Mr. Wynne Jones at the Central Police Court to-day on a charge of breach of the Banishment Ordinance. Inspector E. A. Vincent informed his Worship that the defendant had just had a look at Canton and then returned to the Colony. Sentence of the one year's hard labour was imposed.

NO PERMIT FOR AIR RIFLE.

YOUTH FINED AT THE MAGISTRACY.

A young Chinese recently arrived from Batavia appeared before Mr. Wynne Jones at the Central Police Court this morning on a charge of being in possession of a B.S.A. air rifle without a permit from the Inspector General of Police.

Inspector F. Shaftain said the defendant was staying in a boarding house. Yesterday evening he was seen walking from the ship to the boarding house in Connaught Road carrying the rifle quite openly except that it was wrapped in a covering. The police were not taking a serious view of the case as he had only just arrived in Hongkong and was just a friend. The police were not even pressing for the confiscation of the rifle. It was probable that if he applied it would be given a permit to take it out of the Colony.

A fine of $10 was imposed.

film in 1890, changed all this; the cumbersome equipment, with its tent and water bottles, soon gave place to the handy daylight-loading Kodak. From a secret art photography evolved into a readily understandable process that has become everybody's hobby.

"Hello, Dexter—the youngster is acting up again and I want you to give him a talking to."

THE BLIGHT OF SNOBBERY.
BY W.H.L.

SNOBBERY—what a host of blither, humiliating memories the word can conjure up! How our cheeks burn at the recollection of some subtle cruelty reeled from out of the dim past! No necessity, indeed, to delve into times gone by for examples of such inhuman ignorance, for the blight of snobbery is a present-day reality which appears to have grown more and more prevalent in postwar times.

It is rampant to-day in our Universities amongst both students and professors, and heaven pity the needy student who does not affect an artificial status with which to disguise his poverty, for otherwise his life under the Alma Mater can be made in a thousand and one little ways a hell on earth.

Can the blame be laid on the shoulders of the present modern generation? Or, again, is it some foul offspring of the source of snobbery. Our city of Edinburgh is credited with a large amount of snobbery, and surely there can be no denying it; indeed, one has only to visit our worthy but less beautiful neighbour Glasgow to note a striking difference. I am not going to deal with England, for we are racially a different people with different temperaments. Therefore, let us deal with our ain folks.

War Pals

I once visited Glasgow, it was round about Christmas I recollect, and was passing down Sauchiehall Street when I saw a sight I have never forgotten—that of a well-to-do business gentleman chatting pleasantly to a man selling matches, the pair, as I afterwards found out, having been together in the same regiment during the War. A more striking display of comradeship could scarcely be imagined, and I am told that this was no isolated exception. Without a doubt, Glasgow as a whole is by far a more natural city than ours; they have found a way to a certain happiness.

"Quite so," you reply, "the commercial spirit of course." That, however, is not the point at all. If the commercial men can adopt a "hail fellow well met" attitude, why not the professional? Professional superiority is greatly in evidence to-day, and is a canker which should be obliterated. There is no ignoring the cloak of superiority which lawyers and accountants don in the presence of the ordinary business man—and yet where would they be but for the employment he provided? No Socialist or extremist am I who pens this indictment against such crass folly—merely one who has come through the mill slightly embittered and with a nasty taste in my mouth.

Love of Luxury

It would be of great interest if it were possible to obtain statistics of the number of people who starve their stomachs in order to indulge in fashionable luxuries. Possibly the figures would be surprising, especially so in the case of women.

I once read, I forget where, a quotation which said: "To be deliberately happy in this life; one must banish all thought." Whoever made that up knew what he (or she) was talking about. A pity, is it not, that we have to close our eyes and ears to the dirty, cheap little things that go on round about us. It seems to be the only way at present, however, otherwise life would become unbearable. The sensitive shut themselves away from the world and its people—hence we have that sorry figure, the recluse.

The remedy then is in our own hands, and if we were but to make the effort, life could be very much more pleasant than it is at present—But, and a great big "but," it is to obtain success, entire co-operation, as with everything else, would be necessary.

Edinburgh, look to yourself; free yourself from the unsavoury reputation which is associated with your name; kill that "it isn't done" spirit and above all be yourself.

If this little article should lead to public thought, then indeed it will have not been in vain.

WHY BE PUNCTUAL?

By L. C. MOORE.

EVERY little circle of friends and relations is blessed (or, as they would say, cursed) with a timekeeper. It's an unofficial unpaid position, and those who are unlucky enough to hold it have a pretty thin time. Their friends tolerate them because they are necessary evils (although nobody would admit as much), but for sheer unpopularity they've got tennis club secretaries beaten to a frazzle.

I'm one of them. My chief fault is that I take clocks seriously. If someone invites me to dinner and says, "Blow along at seven," then I get a real kick out of ringing the door bell just as the church clock is chiming the hour.

Unfortunately, however, no one else seems to have the same passion for punctuality; the other guests haven't arrived, and for about an hour I represent a problem to my host and hostess. They aren't nearly so ready themselves, yet they feel they must entertain me, and altogether things are rather strained. Common sense, I know, suggests that I should change my ways. I know that, because I've been told it so many times. But I can't, because I was born that way.

It is women who hate my punctuality most. If there are six clocks in the house, and they all say something different, a woman will believe the one that favours her most.

If the hands point to five-thirty, she will light-heartedly spend three-quarters of an hour on dressing, and expect to find the hands in the same position when she comes down. Cursed as I am, I call up at intervals of five minutes, and am always accused (a) of trying to frighten her, and (b) of having altered the hands. Punctuality in getting to places is bad enough, but the timekeeper makes himself even more unpopular when it comes to leaving.

A woman will tell her husband that if they go to the Browns' place they must leave not a minute later than ten; she's had quite enough late nights recently. Good enough. The punctual husband had been hoping to stay until eleven or so, but if ten is to be the time, that's O.K. with him.

When ten draws nigh his wife shows not the slightest sign of getting ready to go; she is probably in the middle of an involved conversation over marmalade, or whether one can say French beans and still be patriotic. The wretched man clears his throat, looks at his watch several times, and at last interrupts the conversation. At which she tells him that it cannot possibly be ten yet, and will cheerfully argue that his watch and all the clocks in the house are wrong.

The man then has two options. Either he can behave like a cat on hot bricks until he gets his wife out of the house, or he can shrug his shoulders and say no more.

If he chooses the first they will leave about ten fifteen, and his wife will bully him all the way home for rushing away so.

If, on the other hand, he chooses the second option, they will leave about midnight, and his wife will bully him all the way home for keeping her there when she distinctly said she wanted to get away early.

L. C. Moore.

TSANG FOO VILLA MURDERS.

GOVERNMENT GRANT TO CHILDREN.

VOTE OF $15,000.

Interesting items are contained in the votes which are to come before the Finance Committee of the Legislative Council for approval on Thursday.

A sum of $15,000 is asked as an ex gratia payment to the surviving children of Yamashita Sanjiro who was murdered by a mob during the anti-Japanese riots at Tsang Foo Villa in September last, and to any dependents of the murdered murderer, to be paid through the Japanese Consul General.

Another vote is for $14,000 as compensation to Mr. Noel Instone-Brewer. This is the equivalent of £1,000. It is explained that as a result of the investigation by the Secretary of State and his legal advisers and by the Executive Council into the conviction and sentence to four months' imprisonment without hard labour of Mr. Brewer, a free pardon has been granted by H.E. the Governor.

Another sum is of $2,500 for legal defence of certain police officers concerned in a raid upon a house suspected of being a common gaming house. The action of these officers was questioned, and serious charges were brought against them. The complainants retained counsel to conduct the prosecution, and it was considered advisable that the police officers should be similarly represented. The complainants failed to appear in Court and the case against the police officers was dismissed.

FRENCH SURTAX OPPOSED.

BRITAIN OBJECTS ON PRINCIPLE.

London, Mar. 15. In the course of Parliamentary answers to-day, Mr. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, said the Government had made it clear to the French Government that it took exception in principle to the imposition of the French surtax on any British goods.

He also said the question was being considered of making representations to the Portuguese Government regarding a recent decree increasing the duties by 20 per cent. on most descriptions of goods. British Wireless.

THE OTTAWA CONFERENCE.

BRITISH DELEGATION NOT CHOSEN.

London, Mar. 15. The Prime Minister to-day stated that almost immediately after the Government was formed, a Cabinet Committee was appointed to supervise preparations for the Ottawa Conference so far as the Government in the United Kingdom was concerned. It had been continuously at work since then.

The composition of the United Kingdom delegation to Ottawa had not yet been considered by the Cabinet. British Wireless.

NEW AERODROME VOTE.

ANOTHER $20,000 REQUIRED.

At Thursday's meeting of the Legislative Council, the Colonial Secretary will move:

"That this Council approves of the expenditure of a further sum of $20,000 on the Kai Tak aerodrome hangar during the financial year 1932 which sum shall be met from a future loan and shall meanwhile be charged as an advance from the surplus balances of the Colony."

Charging a Swatow Chinese before Mr. Wynne Jones at the Central Police Court this morning with begging, Inspector P. Shaffan informed his Worship that the defendant had been in the Colony for only five days. He stated that the soldier in Swatow had attempted to arrest him to work as a coolie in Shanghai, but he objected and ran away. His Worship informed the defendant that he would get into trouble if he started begging in Hongkong, and registered a caution.

LYTTON MISSION IN SHANGHAI.

READY TO BE OF SERVICE.

Shanghai, Mar. 15.

Speaking at a table given by Mr. Quo Tai-chi, the Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs, to-day, Lord Lytton said:

"We have come as envoys, as representatives of the League, to place at your disposal all the resources of the League, to offer you its help and assistance in any way in which you can tell us it can be of service in this particular crisis."

"But I must remind you that the League is not a super State; it cannot impose its will upon members who do not require its assistance. The League has no effective answer to force. It is an alternative to force."

He added that if China and Japan were willing to accept an alternative, he believed it would prove a help and advantage to both countries.

Mr. Wu's Outburst.

Mr. Wu Teh-chen declared that when the Commissioners visited Wosung, Kiangwan and Chapei they would see for themselves "how thoroughly the Japanese war machine has accomplished its mission of wanton destruction," and concluded:

"The Japanese policy for the domination of China since the fateful evening of September 18 has not undergone one iota of change." But China, he said, continued to look to the League for justice.

Rumour of Obstruction.

Questioned by Reuters concerning sensational rumours that the new Government of Manchuria was taking steps to prevent the League Commissioners from going thither, or at least to obstruct their investigations, Lord Lytton said he had nothing to substantiate such reports. Reuters.

Mutineers Concentrate.

Tokyo, Mar. 15.

A report from Manchuria states that the Chinese troops who recently revolted are now concentrating at Dolinnor, threatening again to attack Manchuria.

Railway guards have been sent to disperse them, but many have joined the insurgents.

Following the Consul's advice, seventy Japanese women and children have evacuated Manchuria for Harbin to-day. Reuters.

Japan and Russia.

Harbin, Mar. 15.

It is reported that a Japanese aeroplane flying over Soviet territory eastward of Pogranitchnyaya, was forced to land by eight Russian planes. Reuters.

MODERN WATER WORKS.

WUCHOW SYSTEM GOING AHEAD.

Wuchow, March 14.

The work connected with the installation of a modern system in Wuchow is rapidly gaining headway.

At present the workmen are connecting up homes and stores along the streets where the water mains have previously been laid. It is hoped that the new system will solve the water problems of the city, and that fire hazard will also be minimized, because of the ample supply and the pressure of water which the new system will make possible. Our Own Correspondent.

CLOSER UNION OF COLONIES.

COMMISSION TO BE APPOINTED.

London, Mar. 15.

The Colonial Secretary, Sir Philip Cunliffe List, stated in the House of Commons to-day that the Governors of the Leeward Islands, the Windward Islands and Trinidad are in general agreement as to the desirability of a Commission being appointed to enquire into the question of a closer union between these islands, and he had under consideration the appointment of such a Commission. British Wireless.

The King has approved the appointment of the Rev. William Thornton Featherstone, M.A., lately headmaster of the Diocesan School, Hongkong, to the vicarage of Hook, Surbiton, vacant by the cession of the Rev. Jenkin Alban Davies, M.A.

ON HEALTH TRIP TO RIVIERA.

The latest photo of the Archbishop of Canterbury, who is proceeding on a health trip to the south of France. It was taken at Geneva at the Disarmament Conference, when the Archbishop was making an impassioned plea for an end to all wars.

BISHOP ALLEGES SACRILEGE.

DONKEY BROUGHT ON SCENE.

Rome, Feb. 15.

The Osservatore Romano to-day publishes an extraordinary diocesan message circulated by the Bishop of Adria calling on the faithful of his district near Rovigo, south of Venice, to repair to the local church to make spiritual reparation for "a horrible parody and sacrilege of the Holy Mass," stated to have been enacted in the presence of a crowd, including local government officials.

Denouncing the affair as "worthy of unhappy Russia," the Bishop states that on Ash Wednesday, in the hall of the "Dopolavoro" (the "Blackshirt" recreation institution) of Barchella, a "baccanale" took place, "which consisted of a horrible sacrilegious mockery of the Holy Mass in which the Cross to which was added a dried fish marked with the L.V.M.I., the altar, the candles, the chalice, the bishop, priests, servers incense, and chants were all parodied, even to giving the Communion to a donkey specially brought on to the scene."

"Mayor Present."

The Bishop states that this sacrilege was performed in the presence of the podesta (Mayor), the political secretary, other notables of the place, carabinieri, and a large crowd of men, women, minors, and infants.

He called on all the faithful to repair to the local church the following Sunday for a special service of spiritual reparation for the diabolical parody, when general Communion would be given and the Sacrament exposed all day long.

In a comment on the above, which comes with special shock to everyone at this moment of new found and solemnly consecrated peace, the Osservatore indicates that those present could surely not have realised the infamy of the exhibition, and expresses certainty that those responsible will be severely punished.

Barchella is a remote isolated hamlet of under 2,000 inhabitants. Government inquiries have been taken on foot, and I am informed that they have found guilty of responsibility or participation in the above affair will be punished with the full rigour of the law. Under the new Penal Code punishment for this kind of offence ranges from one to three years' imprisonment.

SAVED FROM DEATH BY KING EDWARD.

COLONEL LYNCH ON HIS TRIAL FOR TREASON.

Colonel Arthur Lynch, who was sentenced to death for high treason, reprieved, and released from prison through the direct intervention of King Edward, broke a 30 years' silence when he addressed the Irish Literary Society on "My Boer Campaign" in London.

He explained for the first time in public why he fought against this country in the Boer War, the offence for which he was convicted.

He said that he fought for South Africa in the cause of liberty and because he believed that his action was in the best interest of Australia, the land of his birth, and Ireland, the land of his fathers.

OLD SONGS FOR NEW.

POPULAR TASTE REVERTING TO THE 'NINETIES.

The music of the 'Nineties and the early part of the present century has come back to London, American "hot" music is at a discount, "Daisy Bell" and the songs of Laetia Stuart are booming.

For many months this revival has been noticeable in the places where hands play popular music, restaurants, music halls, cinemas, night clubs and open air stands. Now the swing back of the pendulum has even reached cabaret. "Hot" music is dead.

Mr. Philip Moss Vernon, who specialises in cabaret work, found that the engagement of American producers to put on cabarets in England was too expensive. So he went to America to learn their methods. On his return he discovered that he had wasted his time. England had gone back to "The Man who broke the Bank" and Lily of Laguna.

The first engagement Mr. Vernon was offered was the production of a new cabaret at the Trocadero embodying nothing but the old numbers! Even the singing waiter is to be revived, and recently Mr. Vernon was hard at work holding an audition of Trocadero waiters for their new duties. His task was easier than he thought. One or two men had excellent voices and the rest provided a first-class chorus for "I do like to be beside the seaside."

MORE SEDATE FOX TROT.

A FASTER TANGO TIME.

Some dances are to be slower. The Board of Control of Ballroom Dancing, which represents every professional dancing society in the country, have discussed the speeds at which dances should be taken and decided on the following: Quick Step—50-52 bars per minute—four bars slower than last year.

Slow Foxtrot—34-36—six bars slower. Tango—32-34. New Valse—36-38. Old Valse—48-50. Blues—30-32. The New Waltz time is the same as last year, and the Tango time is slightly faster. These speeds will be observed at the forthcoming Blackpool dance festival.

Girl Partners.

The Board also considered the question of the engagement of girls and young women without salary as dancing partners at hotels, restaurants and dance halls.

In view of the moral issues involved the Board resolved to endeavour to secure the abolition of this system and to oppose the licence of any establishment adopting it. It was decided that amateur status should be considered for selection by any dancer—judging a public competition or giving a public demonstration.

"I fought as a Republican," he said. "I had no other motive, I sought nothing for myself and I gained nothing."

In an interview Colonel Lynch, asked why he had waited 30 years before referring to his trial in public, said that he had not been able to find an opportunity previously.

He fought for this country during the last war, and he is now engaged in writing scientific and philosophical books.

THE COSMIC RAY.

BALLOONS' PART IN EXPERIMENTS.

Pasadena (Cal.). Small balloons, with delicate scientific instruments attached, are to be sent 10 miles or more above the earth, and from the results obtained man may know whether he is living in a universe that is dying or one that is growing. Dr. Robert A. Millikan, head of the California Institute of Technology, has revealed his plan to send the balloons into the stratosphere in order to study the "cosmic ray."

The purpose of the experiments will be to learn whether the "cosmic ray" has its origin in the construction of the material universe, as he now believes or if the rays signal the universe's destruction, as Sir James Jeans believes.

Sir James holds that the "cosmic rays" are the "death walls" of the universe, having their origin in the breaking up of the universe's distant matter. Dr. Millikan, taking the view that they are the "birth cries" of the universe, believes the rays have origin in the formation of matter.

CHARITY FOOTBALL.

ASSISTANCE FOR WIDOW OF MILITARY SERGEANT.

Charity football matches, the proceeds to be donated to Mrs. Mullen, the widow of Q. M. S. Mullen, who died in Hongkong recently, will be staged by the Hongkong Football Association on Saturday, April 2, on the Hongkong Football Club ground at Happy Valley.

Tentative arrangements for these games were made by the Council at their monthly meeting last evening. It was decided that two matches be arranged, the more important between the pick of the Service players and a representative side chosen from civilian footballers, to commence at 4.30 p.m.

The other match, between the Services and civilian players appearing in the Second and Third Divisions of the League, will start at 2.30 p.m.

The Council selected a date that would not, they hoped, clash with other important engagements, so that a large crowd could attend the two matches.

HANDSARD AS A BEST SELLER.

REPRINT NEEDED OF OFFICIAL REPORT.

Feb. 16.
"Handsard."—The official report of the proceedings and debates of the House of Parliament: colloquy, so called as having been compiled for a long period by Messrs. Handsard. Also transcribed.

Not, you will observe, "colloquy," a best seller. The Dictionary is too prosaic for that.

Yet such is the hard, cold fact, Handsard, like Mr. J. B. Priestley, is a best seller.

On Saturday, the Stationery Office sold out the entire issue of Handsard for the previous day, and it was disclosed yesterday that this is not the first time that such an occurrence has been known.

Last Friday the debate took place on the Children Bill. So avid was the general public to devour the wisdom of Parliamentary lips on the topic of oppressed children that hard-worked officials on the following day were hard put to it to garner in the sixpences which were hurried across the counter for the right to enjoy it.

Reprint orders were at once put in, and before there was a chance that the oratory-greedy men and women should learn of their danger, fresh supplies were on the way.

"Sold Out."

But, and here's the rub—Handsard has sold out over and over again. During the troublous days of the Simon Commission, every debate of the topic of India was eagerly

SUNDAY FOOTBALL.

AN ASSOCIATION FORMED.

Fourteen amateur football leagues and a number of football organizations representing nearly 500 amateur clubs has met in London and formed a National Sunday Football Association.

A council of 32 was appointed to make rules. Representatives of numerous clubs expressed dissatisfaction with the present regulations, whereby clubs affiliated to the Football Association are debarred from Sunday play.

The next move will be for clubs to express opinions upon the best method of establishing Sunday football, and a meeting of representatives of leagues throughout the country is to be held.

absorbed as it came hot from the press. Supplies ran out, and some were actually kept waiting for their copies.

Now and again a Budget debate has left supply falling lamentably on the heels of demand, and it is a frequent occurrence for supplies only to reach a bare sufficiency.

Eager to satisfy the just cravings of a yearning public, the Stationery Office endeavours to estimate in advance the number of copies which are likely to be asked for on the following day, and, rarely, indeed, do they err in their judgment.

Often, it is true, they find that a sudden rush has taken them unawares, but they are able to place reprint orders in time to avoid depriving faithful readers of their hot refreshment.

"SQUEEZE" CASE SEQUEL.

REVISION OF SENTENCE SOUGHT.

The "squeeze" case in Yau-mat in which three constables and two hawkers were involved had a sequel at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court yesterday when Mr. G. K. Hall Brutton applied for a revision of the sentences of six months and four months passed on two of the constables.

Mr. R. E. Lindell, the Public Prosecutor, appeared for the Crown.

It will be recalled that two hawkers, Chau Pang and Wong Tok, were charged with offering bribes, and the three constables, Li Lam, Mak Lu and Wan Pui, were charged with making illegal exactions from hawkers, and with misconduct as Police constables.

Mr. Horace Lo then appeared on behalf of the first defendant, Chau Pang, and Mr. F. X. d'Almada, Sr., for the three constables.

Eventually, the second defendant, Wong Tok, and Mak Lu, the fourth defendant, were discharged. The first and third defendants were sentenced to six months' hard labour each and the fifth defendant, who had been commended before for meritorious conduct, to four months.

Cases Not the Same

In making his application, Mr. Hall Brutton said the charges against the hawkers and the constables were totally different and the cases should not have been taken together. If the hawkers and the constables had not been charged together, some of the evidence against them would have been struck out at once as hearsay evidence. As it was, the case against the three constables and the hawkers was greatly prejudiced.

His Worship, however, pointed out that the defendants were represented when the case commenced and no objection was then taken.

With regard to Chau Pang, Mr. Hall Brutton submitted that no evidence had been given of "the person or persons unknown." He quoted the case of the Crown v. Thompson, in which three men were charged with conspiracy with persons unknown. No evidence was given as to who the persons unknown were, and two of the defendants were acquitted, as a result of which the third man had also to be acquitted. Mr. Hall Brutton submitted that this was a parallel case.

"Charges Badly Framed."

Another ground on which his application was based, went on Mr. Hall Brutton, was that the charges were badly framed. That was only a technical point, but if the charges were badly drawn, the defendants could not be made to suffer for the mistakes of the Crown. The Crown must suffer for its own mistakes.

Referring to conspiracy, Mr. Hall Brutton said conspiracy could not have been proved if the two cases had been taken separately as they should have been. To support a charge of conspiracy, there must be a criminal act, and Mr. Hall Brutton submitted that there was no criminal act committed by the constables. The bare fact that they went up to hawkers to ask for their licences was not criminal.

In opposing the application, Mr. Lindell said he admitted that

THE DEFENCE OF HONGKONG.

QUESTION OF ITS FUTURE NON-FORTIFICATION.

London, Mar. 15.

In the House of Commons today, Captain Eden, answering Mr. Geoffrey Mander (Nat. Liberal, Wolverhampton E.) said that the question of the non-fortification of Hongkong in the event of breaches of the Washington Treaty, and of the Pact of Paris being broken, was sub judice.

He was not prepared to say what the policy of the Government would be in the circumstances mentioned. — Our Own Correspondent.

perhaps the charges were badly framed but notwithstanding this, he submitted that the convictions were good, and that even if the charges were unfortunately worded, there was abundant evidence to convict the defendants on the charges as they stood.

After hearing further argument, his Worship decided to hear Mr. Hall Brutton's arguments in support of his application and fixed March 23 for the hearing.

has been broadcast by the B.B.C.

A Service in Latin.

Miss Ann Maria King, one of the petitioners, speaking of the Service of Benediction, said that it was all in Latin except the Divine praises at the end.Miss King next described the Service of the Procession of the Virgin Mary, usually held in May before the Service of Benediction.The procession, she said, was formed of the vicar, servers and children of the Guild of Mary. The men carried lighted candles and rosaries.Two little girls walked backward before the image of the Virgin Mary. They had wreaths of flowers round their heads and carried baskets of flowers which they kissed and then threw up to the image.The image is carried on the shoulders of four older girls," said Miss King. "Between two long poles. The vicar carried a rosary and a lighted candle."She had also seen many services known as the Procession of the Host.

"Took off His Shoes."

Mr. Ralph Johnson, of London, who spent his last Easter holiday at St. Hilary, said that on Good Friday the green crucifix from the tabernacle was unveiled ceremoniously by the vicar, and was laid on a cushion and covered by a white lince veil."The vicar" (Mr. Johnson continued) "then took off his chasuble and shoes, genuflected three times, and knelt before the crucifix. He kissed the feet of the image, and practically everybody else did the same. A boy knelt beside the crucifix to wipe the feet with a purifier after each person."In the prayers, said Mr. Johnson, the words "Plus our Pope and Walter our Bishop" were used.
The vicar walked round the church with "something that looked like a large green sunshade" carried over him.

Judgment was reserved.

UR EXCAVATORS
PUZZLED.FIRST TRACE OF A
2800 B.C. DYNASTY.The finding of 18 bodies richly apparelled and jewelled in a common grave in which they had lain for more than 4,700 years has completely puzzled the excavators at Ur of the Chaldees.A message from Mr. Leonard Wooley, of the Joint Expedition of the British Museum and the University of Pennsylvania, states:
"The tomb proved to be unique in character. In date it belonged to the period of the unknown
Second Dynasty of Kings of Ur, circa 2,800 B.C.; in type it was a multiple burial in a common shaft, the bodies for the most part richly adorned with head ornaments and necklaces of gold, being laid either in matting or in reed coffins."

Who Were They?

"Over the earth in which the burials lay there was spread a clay floor on which fires had been lit and food offered, then, higher up in the shaft, a brick floor with an altar, another floor and altar, and finally a packed mass of broken mud and brick which stopped the shaft.""The graves," though it throws light on a period scarcely represented before, is a complete puzzle, who these 18 people buried together at one time were, and why so long-drawn a ritual celebrated their burial, there is nothing to explain."

Imprint on Soil.

One of the coffins had left in the soil so clear an impression that a photograph showed the texture of the reeds and the strings lying together.Already one series of buildings dating to about 3,000 B.C., and a massive complex of walls and chambers which may well go back nearly 4,000 years earlier, have been reached.Under the foundations of a temple wall of about 1,950 B.C., have been found boxes containing four large inscribed copper cylinders, which Mrs. Woolley states should go far towards making the record
complete.RED TUNIC

POLICY.The War Office, after deciding to close the Royal Army Clothing Department in Pimlico and give up the property, is now faced with the problem of arranging for the supply of red tunics, uniforms with slashed sleeves, and other full-dress items.Private firms are anxious to accept contracts for uniforms and other articles for field service and routine work, but difficulties haveA THRILLING ESCAPE.SPORTSMAN OUTWITS
KIDNAPPERS:

New York, Feb. 17.

The thrilling story of the escape from kidnappers of Mr. Henry Blagden, the wealthy New York sportsman, reads like an exploit of Bulldog Drummond's.Mr. Blagden, who was carried off and held for ransom when staying at Lake Placid for the Olympic Games last Thursday, reappeared to-day at Cleveland, Ohio, 400 miles from the scene of the abduction.He told of an exciting escape from a closed delivery truck in which his captors had been driving him.The vehicle had halted at a roadside restaurant to enable two of his captors to buy food, leaving a third man to mount guard over their prisoner.Blagden feigned sleep. Then, when his guard's attention was momentarily relaxed, he wrenched him by a blow in the stomach, seized his gun, stunned him with it and made a dash for freedom, running till he was exhausted.

Guarded House.

Ignorant of his whereabouts, he learned with great astonishment that he was in Cleveland.With his clothes torn and suffering from exposure, he made his way to the home of a family friend at Cleveland Heights, and this house has been placed under a heavy police guard to-day."I believe I was abducted in mistake for Roland Harriman, a son of the railway king, who was to share a cottage with me at Lake Placid," Blagden said."On Thursday I was forced out of the cottage and into a car at pistol point. I was given beer to drink, which, I am convinced, contained a powerful drug, for I became unconscious, and didn't revive till I found myself in a windowless room with eight men.""When they asked me if I were the millionaire sportsman, I pretended to be a poor school teacher.""This disgusted the kidnappers, who obviously hoped for bigger game, and they asked whether my friends could raise as much as $200, then forced me to write a letter demanding that amount of ransom."The police believe that Blagden's kidnappers are a gang whose operations throughout the country have compelled the introduction of a Bill into the Senate enforcing the death penalty for such offences.arisen in regard to the supply of full dress uniforms for too high a price is being asked.As a consequence the War Office is retaining in its service some of the skilled workers of Pimlico who have made the display uniforms, and is considering the question of keeping a small factory outside Pimlico to make the full dress outfits.

THE FAILURE OF CAPITALISM.

THE REV. E. L. ALLEN'S
INDICTMENT.

ROTARY TALK.

A strong indictment against present-day capitalism was made by the Rev. E. L. Allen, M.A., Ph.D., Dastor of Kowloon Union Church, when he delivered an extremely thought-provoking address at yesterday's Rotary Club luncheon, held at Messrs. Lane Crawford's Restaurant, under the chairmanship of Sir William Hornell.

After pointing out the disastrous results of economy and rationalization, the speaker suggested the dire necessity for economic planning, first on the national and then on the international scale; planning designed to ensure that consumption kept pace with production and that the process of putting goods on the market did, at the same time, give people power to buy them.

He concluded by saying, "I see nothing in Christianity which should make it more opposed to communism than to capitalism. The future of civilization depends. I would suggest, on our ability to effect a reconciliation between the ideal of individual liberty on the one hand and the new economic forces on the other, which are at work in Soviet Russia."

New Members.

The following new members were welcomed, Dr. R. A. de Castro Basto, Mr. M. Manuk and Mr. D. M. Goodall.

Non-Rotarian visitors welcomed were as follows: Flight Lieutenant R. M. Trevathan, M.C. (H.M.S. Hermes, Mr. W. L. Handyside (Hongkong), Mr. J. Ehrhardt (Shanghai), and Dr. F. S. Tsang (Shanghai).

The Chairman welcomed the following Rotarian guests, Mr. T. Fox (Bangkok), Mr. C. J. McCarthy (Shanghai), Mr. H. Macgown (Shanghai), Mr. H. Sander (Shanghai), Mr. A. Shister (Singapore), and Mr. C. E. Schroeder (Liege, Belgium).

Mr. Fox said that the President of the Bangkok Club had asked him to convey his personal greetings to Hongkong Rotarians whom he met about a year ago; also the greetings of the Bangkok Club to the Hongkong Club, with the hope that in the future it might be possible for the two Clubs to get into closer contact.

Dr. Allen's Address.

The speaker said:—If I were to choose a sub-title for my remarks, I think it would be "After Capitalism—what?" During the last hundred and fifty years the western world lived to an increasing extent under the influence of the capitalist system; to-day that system is approaching the point of integration and the future of our civilization depends on whether or not we have the wisdom and courage to put a better one in its place. During its reign of a century and a half, the capitalist system has brought many benefits; it has improved communications, popularized knowledge, raised the standard of life and given to the masses a degree of personal comfort unknown previously outside the privileged classes.

Ominous Signs of Disaster.

But perhaps it might be a little nearer the truth to say that most of these benefits have been wrung from capitalism by the organized action of the workers, backed by the conscience of the community in the form of state interference. To-day this vast and imposing edifice gives ominous signs of impending disaster; it is threatened alike from within and without. It has shown itself to be utterly unable to meet the needs of the world situation in which we find ourselves, and it is being challenged in an altogether new way by the fact that Russia has set out to show the world that there is an alternative to it. There are many counts in the indictment which the times in which we live are bringing against the capitalist system, but I will content myself with a brief reference to three of these.

To begin with, capitalism has failed where failure on the part of an economic system is unpardonable. It has literally failed to deliver the goods. The task of an economic order is not merely to make goods on a large scale and at low prices, but to sell them, and to do that it must see that the people have money with which to buy the goods. The money is just what they have not got. There is a shortage, not of goods nor even of people who would like to possess them, but of purchasing power in the hands of those who want the goods.

Here, it seems to me that Mr. J. A. Hobson's analysis is as sound as any. In a time of industrial prosperity wealth tends to accumulate in the hands of the investing class, who use it to buy machinery to make goods and yet more goods. But too small a proportion of the national income has gone into the hands of the wage-earners and others who want to buy those goods, so that they have not the purchasing power to take them off the market. Hence these periods of glutted markets and unemployed workers, of poverty amid plenty, through one of which we are passing to-day.

Bankrupt of Ideas.

In the second place, I see in capitalism a bankruptcy of ideas. It has no remedies to offer except such as would make the disease worse even than it is. The two remedies which it proposes are economy and rationalization.

Economy has been tried seriously in Germany; Mr. J. M. Keynes tells us that no country has ever accepted such a regime of hardship and sacrifice as she has imposed upon herself. And to what end? In spite of all the reduction in wages, the drop in prices, the acceptance of a lower standard of living, and the suspension of trade union regulations—or perhaps because of all these things—business remains at a standstill and the misery of the people only increases.

Rationalization is equally disastrous. As it is practiced, for example, by the railway companies and other great combines in England, it deliberately aims at dispensing with labour and so at adding to the volume of unemployment and poverty in the country.

If, as I have urged, what is wrong is shortage of purchasing power, then any policy which further diminishes that power, as by wage-reduction, increases in the worst of living, or taxation of the lower level of incomes, only serves to aggravate the problem.

Enemy of Human Freedom.

The third charge against capitalism is of a different order. It has always made a certain moral claim; it has claimed to be the one way in which individual initiative and enterprise can be encouraged. But capitalism, as it exists to-day, is the enemy of human freedom and has given us the slave state in one of its worst forms. The great industrial countries give the people democratic institutions and the semblance of power, but the reality of it is elsewhere with impersonal economic forces. The reason why men do not rebel to-day is that the enemy is a thing rather than a person. You cannot raise an army against the gold standard or the rate of exchange or the price level, but these are the masters of our destiny!

I was tempted at one stage to give way to force of habit and take a text. I have not done so, but I will read you the words I might have chosen for that purpose. They are the words of an American economist, Professor Douglas.

Ills of Capitalism.

"If mankind must go through such great periodical crises, if men must starve because there is too much food, go naked because there is too much clothing, and sleep in the parks because there is too much housing, then the masses of sensible men and women will create a new economic system whose governing principle will be something other than

The important words there are the last ones: "A less clumsy and a more perfectly co-ordinated economic system." Capitalism is anarchy, the blind hope that out there will, somehow, arise the common good. If we continue on this road it will lead us, sooner or later, to beggary. But there is an alternative and what that is Russia has shown us.

Russia's Lesson.

The new idea which we can learn from Russia is not communism—that may or may not have value for us—but just the conception of economic planning, of the deliberate control of the economic forces which operate within the borders of a country for the common good of its people. Russia's plan is for Russia only, of course, and any plan which other countries might adopt would have to be framed with their own conditions in view.

But the idea of a Five Years Plan has come to stay. Let there be a scheme drawn up by the best brains the country can command; let it have in view every aspect of the problem—the production of consumption and capital goods, the provision of credits, the education of technicians, the housing of the people and so on, and let every section of industry, instead of going off on its own in search of private profit, be so directed that it will contribute its quota to the common prosperity, with the minimum of waste or overlapping. We have too long allowed economic forces to control us. The time has come when we must assert our right to control them and make them serve us by building for us a better social order.

New State Needed.

Let me anticipate one objection. I said a while ago that individual liberty withered under capitalism. Is not that also true of Soviet Russia? Certainly it is true; and yet I suggest that, in this Russia's guilt is less than ours, for she never benefitted as we have done by those two great movements, the Renaissance and the Reformation, which taught us the supreme worth of personality and its right to self-expression.

But the fact remains that for those who believe that individually is the spring of all progress and that a society is to be judged by the room it gives to the development of the individual, there is no satisfaction in the communist state. We need a new kind of state, in which the social control of economic forces and the freedom of the individual can co-exist.

Not a Death-Menace.

Lord Lothian, on his return last year from Russia, said he was convinced that what he saw there was not a death-menace to civilization but the possibility of its re-birth. But it is not easy for us to learn from a nation which we have so long regarded as the common enemy of mankind. Yet we must learn this lesson of the dire necessity for economic planning, first on the national and then on the international scale; planning designed to ensure that consumption keeps pace with production, that the process of putting goods on the market does at the same time give the people the power to buy them.

Perhaps few convictions are more deeply-rooted to-day in the minds of the ruling, the possessing, and the educated classes throughout the world than that there is a relation of necessary antagonism between the religious and moral tradition of western Europe and the economics of Soviet Russia. I believe that this is a great mistake. I see nothing in Christianity which should make it more opposed to communism than to capitalism, for example. The future of civilization depends, I would suggest, on our ability to effect a reconciliation between the ideal of individual liberty on the one

THE DIOCESAN CONFERENCE.

BISHOP OF VICTORIA REVIEWS POSITION.

A survey of the work done in the Diocese during the last twelve years, this being the length of his term of office in Hongkong, was given by the Bishop of Victoria when presiding for the last time at the Diocesan Conference, which commenced at St. John's Cathedral Hall yesterday evening. The conference is a two-day event and will be continued this evening.

His Lordship referred to the diminution of foreign clergy, saying that the Chinese Church, at the present time, unquestionably needed the assistance of western clergy. He added that what gave him most anxiety was the decrease in the number of foreign missionary clergy serving in the Diocese.

He further said that where definite progress did seem to have been made was in the matter of building, and although he did not claim credit for any of those developments, some of which were done before he became Bishop, it had been a great encouragement to witness such growth and the splendid work done by many people in securing those results.

Officials Elected.

The Rev. L. N. Watkins who was not present owing to illness, was re-elected Honorary Secretary, and Mr. Paul Barker was elected Treasurer. Messrs. Thomson and Company were elected auditors.

The following were elected to the Executive Council, the Bishop, The Dean, the Honorary Secretary and Treasurer being ex-officio members. Clergy, Revs. C. I. Blanchett, G. K. Carpenter, N. V. Hayward, W. W. Rogers and G. T. Waldegrave. Lay Representatives, St. John's Cathedral, Lady Pollock, Professor L. Forster and Sir Henry Pollock, K.C.

St. Andrew's Church, Mr. J. W. Baldwin and Mr. J. H. Hunt, O.B.E.

St. Peter's Church, Mr. R. Ash-ton Hill and Miss R. Mow Fung. The budget for 1932, which calls for an estimated expenditure of $8,230 was accepted.

Il était équitable qu'un hommage unanime fut rendu à l'œuvre d'un homme qui, dès le lendemain de la Grande Guerre, s'est dévoué à la cause du rapprochement des peuples, et s'est adonné à la tâche noble entre toutes, de coordonner tous les efforts et toutes les aspirations des hommes de bonne volonté en vue d'établir, contre vents et marées, sur des bases solides, le havre de la Paix.

Je vous prie d'agréer, Monsieur le Directeur, les assurances de ma considération très distinguée. Le Consul Général de France, G. D. DE LA PRADE.

FLATULENCE IN BABIES.

First and foremost among the troubles of babyhood are digestive derangements, usually manifested by distressing attacks of flatulence. Besides the primary seriousness of the mal-nutrition, there is always danger of convulsions if the child is unable to expel the accumulation of gas in the stomach.

In order to ensure normal digestion you should give Baby's Own Tablets, the remedy specially prepared for babies and all children up to six. These pleasant-tasting little tablets, which can be given without trouble, are invaluable for correcting stomach and bowel troubles generally. Baby's Own Tablets are also rapidly effective for breaking up colds, relieving croup, checking diarrhoea and allaying feverishness. During teething the tablets are especially valuable, for their settling effect on the stomach removes the cause of the pains, and thus enables baby to enjoy health-giving sleep. Baby's Own Tablets are guaranteed to contain no narcotics or other harmful drugs, but comprise the prescription of a qualified medical practitioner of special experience in children's ailments.

All chemists and apothecaries can supply you.

THREE KINDS OF LOVE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Ann, Cecily and Mary Frances Fenwick live with their grandparents. The sisters have been orphaned since childhood. The grand-nieces known as "Honey" and "Grand" have long since lost their wealth and the household is supported by Ann and Cecily's earnings. For this reason Ann, 24, and Philip Fenwick, young lawyer, are still postponing their marriage though they have been engaged a year.

Cecily, 22, is in love with Barry McKel, an engineer, but when he proposes she refuses to name the wedding date because she cannot leave Ann with the financial responsibility of the home.

Mary Frances, 16, and still in school, strikes up an acquaintance with Earl De Armont, vaudeville actor. She meets him secretly and he tries to persuade her to become his stage partner.

Phil takes Ann to dinner. A girl she has never seen before sends him a note. Phil's explanations are vague. On the way home Phil stops the car to investigate. A young woman, Letty King, who wrote the note, and Kenneth Smith, her escort, come along in another car. Letty King, Phil with undergarments and Ann, angry, gets in Smith's car and asks him to take her home. Next day he sends flowers.

CHAPTER XXXI

Cecily had looked up the number in the telephone book on Friday, the day before yesterday. She knew it by heart. She dialed it with icy, trembling fingers. The muted ringing sounded again and again in her ears. She prayed. Let him answer it. Dear Lord, let him answer it. Let him answer it. Let him—

"Hello?" A woman's voice, agreeable, cheerful.

"May I please speak to Mr. McKel?"

"Mr. McKel is playing golf. A note of interest was added. 'I am Mrs. McKel; may I take a message for him?'

"I mean—Mr. Barry McKel."

"Barry? The interest changed to amusement, faint but audible. 'He isn't in now.'"

"Oh, I didn't know. Where is he?"

"He is in Albany," Cheery again, almost heartily. "He has been there—let me see—since Friday."

"I—I didn't know. Do you expect him back soon?"

"No. Not very soon," sympathy was added. "He is superintending the work on a building that his uncle is putting up there."

"Could you give me his address?"

"I am sorry," sincerity seemed to be indicated. "But when he telephoned yesterday he said that he was leaving the hotel and would find a boarding place to-day. So, just for the moment, I don't know where he is. We'll know in a day or so; if you'll call again I'll be glad to tell you."

A day or so! There could be no answer to that.

Curiosity came at last, with a touch of crispness. "Is it seriously important? My husband had spoken of driving to Albany this evening. He had given it up. But, perhaps—"

"No," said Cecily, and tried again and said, "No—thank you," and hung up the receiver and went upstairs to her room and darkened it to shut out anything the June month might have to offer, and rolled down into the deep hollow of her bed.

Ann found her there when she came in at seven o'clock that evening, purposely early, from boating with Kenneth.

"Cissy, honey," she protested, and stooped to put her arms around her. "You didn't hear from him? But dear, dear, you can't—you mustn't do this way."

"Sister's sweetheart! He'll come back. But you can't do this way. You're ill already. You're wearing yourself out. You could make it easier, dear, if you'd just go on with life the best way you can. We have to live, you know."

"Why do we?"

"Lots of reasons. Mother and Father gave us life—trusted us with it—a part of their lives. And there is Mary Frances, and—"

"We didn't ask for the gift. I don't want it. Life is too horrible. It cheats us. Fools us. Takes us and hurts us—so. I'm afraid of life. If Barry came back, if he were sitting where you are, right now—I'd still be afraid of life. Always I'll be afraid after this."

"I shouldn't have left you, honey. I shouldn't have. I didn't want to go, and I didn't enjoy myself, and—"

"I made you go. I'm better alone. Please go now, won't you, Ann? Please go. You—you make me nervous."

"No, I don't. I shouldn't have believed you this afternoon, and I don't believe you now." She lay down on the bed, and Cecily stiffened under her curving arm.

"I hate everything!" she declared.

"You don't hate me," Ann said. "You couldn't, when I love you such a lot."

"Who said I did?" said Cecily, and began to cry softly.

"Just let me rest and talk to you a little while," Ann coaxed. "If I make you too nervous, you can push me off. But, Cissy, I've been thinking a lot. All about life being horrid and hurting and everything. It is—and it does, of course, sometimes. But not all the time. In a way, too, it is sort of up to us, how much we'll allow it to hurt us."

Cecily shook her head; shook her body. "No. No. No. No."

"Well, but it is. And here's something else. Life gives us lots of pleasant things—but it won't always allow us to pick and choose for ourselves. There's love. I don't know about men—but women have to have love. Only—I've decided that they don't have to have men's love. There are so many different sorts of love, and I believe—or try to believe, she amended truthfully, "that lots of the sorts are better, surer—happier, anyway, than the love between men and women. Take our love, Cissy, for each other and for Mary Frances. We've always had it, so we don't always appreciate it. But, honey, stop and think if you can what it amounts to. It is certain. It is safe. Nothing can change it or hurt it, and it will last forever. Before I'd hurt you—as you're hurt now—I'd—I'd take myself to pieces and look me. I wouldn't want to live if I'd hurt you, Cissy. And you wouldn't hurt me, as I'm hurt now, not even to have Barry again. But these men, these mean men hurt us, and break our hearts, and go away and suffer away and let us be hurt and suffer. Why should we accuse life of hurting us when it is only men, mean men who hurt us? And why should we value that love, men's love—old hateful, hurting, selfish love—so highly?"

"I don't know. I just want Barry, want to love him—whether he loves me or not. I want to see him—hear his voice. I can't live, I can't breathe without him. I can't, and I don't want to, and I won't try."

"You think that way now, but you'll find out later that you can. Someway you—you got used to it. I thought that way too, last month. That Sunday, Cissy—truly I was out of my mind, almost. I had a strange obsession that I was dead—like the stories one reads, you know—and didn't know that I was dead, and was just walking around watching myself. But that passes off. Truly it does, honey. Truly it does. See how much better I am now? And it has only been a month ago to-day. Just exactly a month ago to-day."

"Ann, I don't want to be hateful. But Barry and I were—are—I will say are. I will say Barry and I are—are—are—"

"Yes, darling. Of course. What are you?"

"We are different from you and Phil. In every way. Do you think, for instance, that I'll ever look at another man? Do you think that I could do as you've done? I don't blame you, but I mean I couldn't. I couldn't start right out to pin, with another man as you've started to play with that funny Kenneth thing. I couldn't. I wouldn't."

"That's just like saying, Cissy, honey, that if you were in one of these tropical places, being bothered by mosquitoes and bugs and things, you'd sit down and let them eat you alive because you couldn't and wouldn't use a shoddy, inferior grade of netting to keep them off."

Cecily cried a little more and said, "No, Ann—you don't understand. You don't understand. 'I try to, dear. Dear, I do try to. I wish you had come with us this afternoon, as I begged you to, instead of staying in this stuffy old house. The river was lovely, and we swam—'"

WOMEN'S WORLD

FOR OUR LADY READERS.

TO-DAY'S RECIPES.

Honey Buns.

Sieve  $\frac{1}{2}$  lb. of flour into a basin, rub in 4oz. of butter till like fine breadcrumbs, add 2oz. of castor sugar and the finely-grated rind of half a lemon. Mix one beaten egg with two tablespoonfuls of honey and a little milk, and add to the dry ingredients, but do not let the mixture become too moist. Mix well and beat, then stir in one teaspoonful of baking powder, put into greased patty-pans and bake in a hot oven for about 20 minutes.

Egg Flip.

Mix together one gill of milk and one tablespoon of brandy or sherry, add a little castor sugar, if liked, and then stir in the stiffly beaten white of one egg. Serve at once.

Fish Souffle.

Melt 1oz. of butter in a saucepan, stir in 1oz. of flour, add a quarter of a pint of milk, and stir constantly over a gentle heat till the mixture thickens. Put into a large basin, add 4oz. of minced white fish which has been freed from skin and bone and finely flaked, and the yolks of two eggs. Season with salt and pepper, pass through a fine sieve. Stir in a tablespoonful of cream and the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs, half fill a mould with this mixture, cover the top securely with greased paper and steam for about 20 minutes. Turn on to a hot dish and serve with white sauce.

Invalid Biscuits.

Beat 2oz. of butter and 2oz. of castor sugar to a cream, add a few drops of vanilla essence. Add half a beaten egg and then stir in 1oz. of flour, till a thick paste is formed. Make into small balls, flatten each one slightly, put on a greased tin, sprinkle with castor sugar and bake till a light brown.

Cream Potage.

Mix  $\frac{1}{2}$ oz. of ground rice with a little water, put it into one pint of chicken stock (boiling) and stir while boiling for 10 minutes. Work the yolks of two eggs with one gill of cream, add the soup, hot but not boiling. Pour it back into a saucepan and stir carefully till the eggs are cooked; season and serve.

CHAMOIS GLOVES.

Chamois gloves and leather will dry soft and supple if a few drops of olive oil are put into the topsoapy lather in which they are washed—also in the clean, soapy water used for rinsing.

For the Spring.

A medium-trimmed hat of natural rough straw is trimmed with a bright red, perky little bird's head and quill.

Blouses More Formal for Afternoons.

With a rich brown velvet ensemble for afternoon wear, this formal blouse of pink satin is suggested. Its Persian embroidery in tones of old rose, green, blue and gold harmonize with a detail of the hat. Note the sleeve with its volant outlined in the same embroidery.

HOW TO TREAT A WIFE.

Don't give your wife a guinea to buy a hat. She will immediately cut the brim off her old one and sew it on the crown in a fresh place, pinch it, iron it, decorate it with one of your diamond cuff-links—and put the guinea in the bank.

She has a positive hatred of specific suns; she delights in wangles, would so much rather squeeze 2s. 11½d. out of the house-keeping money, buy a hat in the bargain basement, and pretend that she has just returned from the latest Paris dress shows.

When you inquire tenderly after your guinea in about twelve months' time, you will learn that she has bought her whole summer outfit with it, and treated herself to a new piano or a suction cleaner with her dress allowance.

She will set out to order coats and come home with two gorgeous feathers instead. Or she will go to buy an electric radiator and a curtain rod. You must not express surprise when a small antique lacquered table and an electric fan come home instead.

She will get you to saw logs in the garden, and the family will manage without coats that winter. The curtains will be put on with picture-cord and tacks, and don't you complain each time they come down on your head when you unwisely venture to draw them.

Don't buy her anything. The husband who brings home a nice large sole, because they were cheap at the stores, when she has arranged to curry the remains of the half-loaf, is simply courting the "rift within the lute."

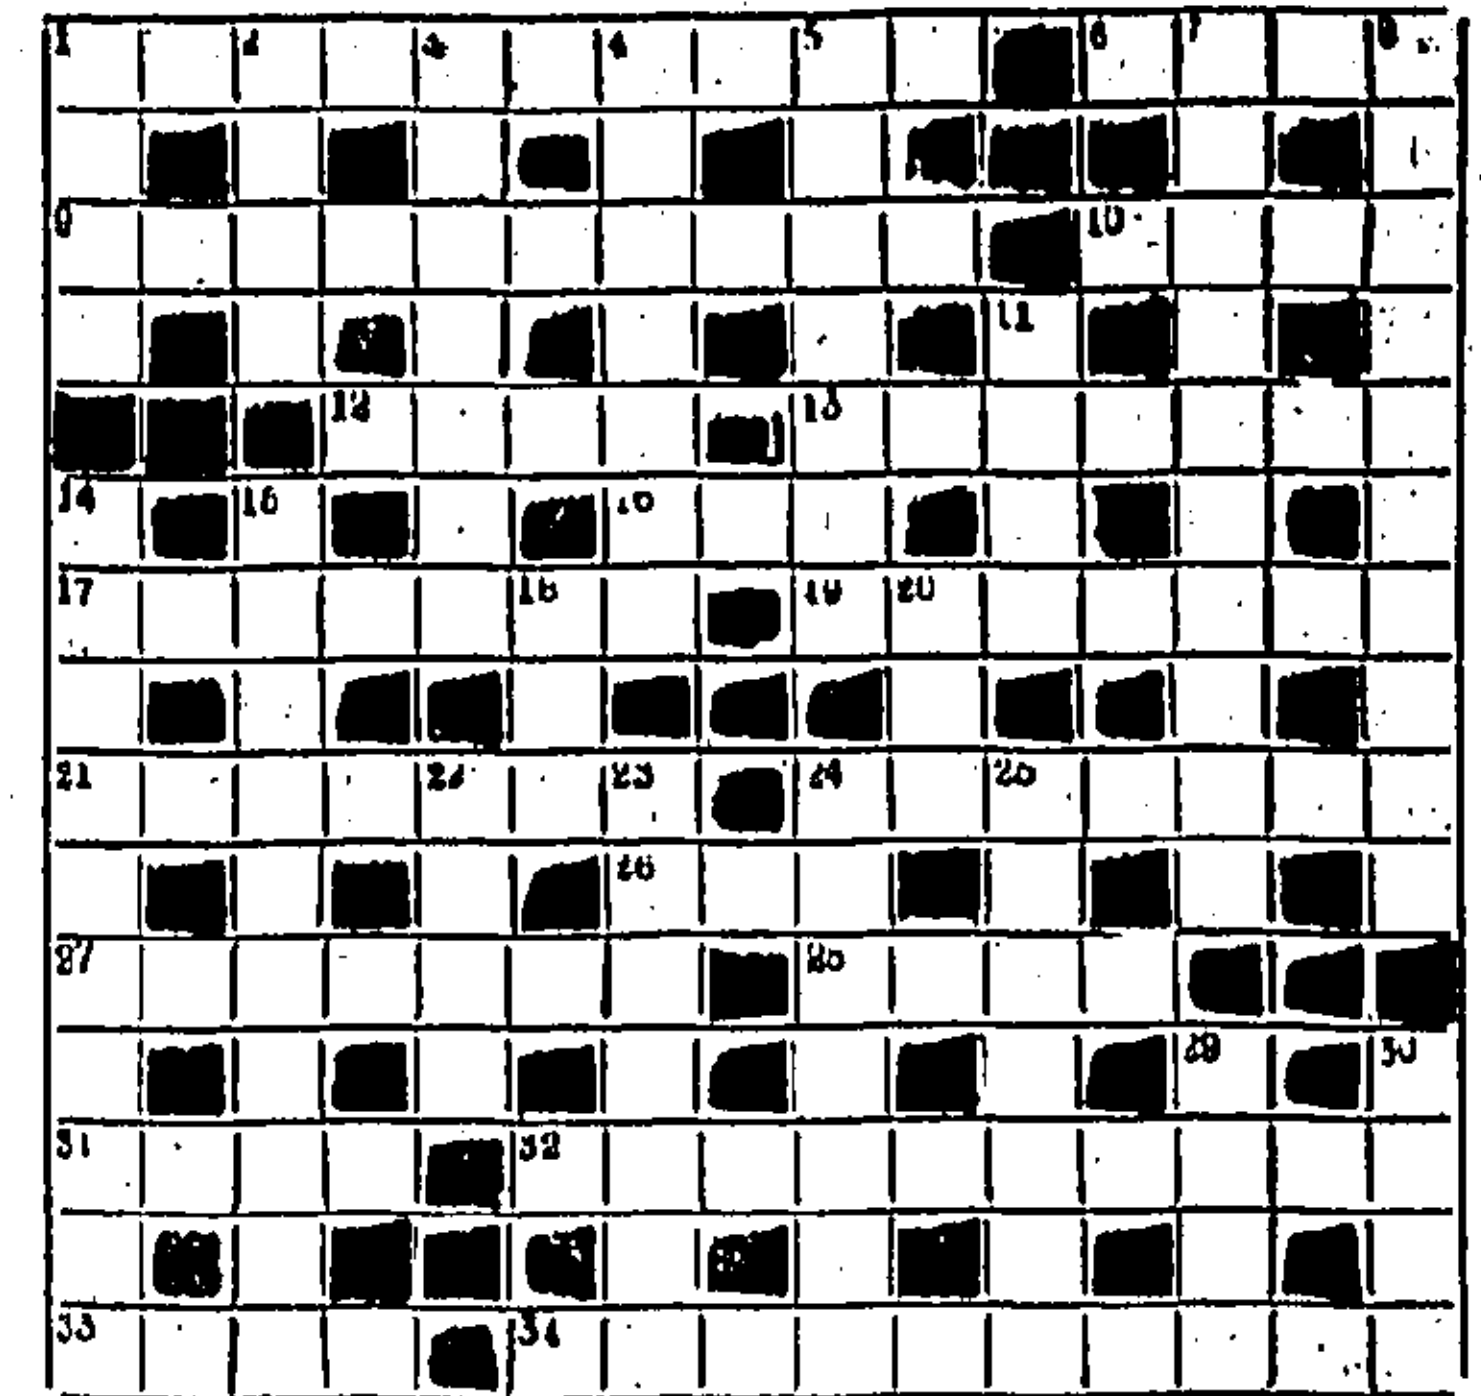

The well-disciplined husband learns that when cheap things are needed in the home his wife will buy them, if you please.

If you buy her a green frock, she will be sure to say you ought to know by now that green does not suit her or that it is exactly like "that Smith woman's so, of course, she could not possibly wear it, and if you still cling to your youthful mind's-eye picture of her in "green baize" or organ-grinder material"—remember that woman's fashions are not what they were.

You must be kind to your wife her way. Let her order your clothes, and buy your smokes, when she buys the family soap, at the summer sales, and if it gives her such extreme satisfaction to shorten your last year's trousers, or let down the hem of your overcoat, to save money for the new wiglets set—let yourself "every day and in every way I am liking them better and better."

RECOVERY OF TREASURES.

OBJECTS THAT WERE WORTH £27,000.

Detectives have just recovered paintings by old masters, carved ivories and other art objects which were worth £27,000, when they were stolen last April.

They were found in an obscure shop in Southwark.

Inquiries are now being made which the police hope will lead to the tracking down of the gang of art thieves who during the past few years have been responsible for the theft of treasures worth £100,000.

The recovered property, which was stolen from the offices of Mr. H. A. Hase, in Stratford-place, Oxford-street, W., is badly damaged.

Among the paintings is Gainsborough's "Countess of Chesham" a picture known by art experts the world over, which was sold some time ago for £17,000.

Other famous pictures found include "A Portrait of Miss Grant" by Reynolds, "A Portrait of a Gentleman" by Gainsborough, and pictures by Van Dyke and Jan Steen.

Cut From Frames.

After locking the pictures from their frames, the thieves folded them in such a way that the paint in some places has been badly cracked and flaked off.

The detectives have also taken possession of some Persian rugs, valuable tapestries and a number of seventeenth-century carved Chinese figures.

"I am afraid most of the pictures are utterly ruined," said Mr. Hase, after he had inspected the recovered articles. "I cannot say yet how many thousands of pounds' worth of damage has been done. It is heart-breaking."

The treasures were found by Divisional Detective - Inspector Dadds of Southwark.

The recovery of the property suggests that art thieves have not the elaborate channels with which they have been credited for the disposal of their spoil.

Detectives recently visited a number of curio shops in the East End in the hope of getting on the track of the Earl of Minto's picture of the first Countess of Minto by Reynolds, which was stolen two years ago together with jewelry worth many thousands of pounds.

THIS NUDIST NONSENSE.

When the local nudist movement was first mooted, there was a general inclination to treat it rather as a subject for humour than to be taken seriously. Now, however, that it is beginning to assume concrete form, there is a widespread feeling, with which we are in entire sympathy, that it is high time the authorities indicated their displeasure at the idea. We take our stand purely on the ground that much harm to public morality can be done by granting facilities to a movement which has many objectionable features.

In saying so much, we do not deny that sun-bathing and open-air exercises in the nude can be wholly beneficial, but to concede so much is one thing, whilst to admit either the necessity or the desirability of the sexes mixing collectively for such purposes is quite another.

So far as we can gather, the Government has not yet defined its attitude on the subject, holding that the matter does not call for decision unless and until application is made for a site on which the cult may be practised. On the other hand, it is stated that the Superintendent of Crown Lands has held out hopes to the sponsors of the movement, that there should be no difficulty in securing the use of a beach in some outlying part of the Colony. How far he reflects the official viewpoint remains to be seen. The general public, however, if we are to judge from expressions of opinion heard on all hands, entertains the hope that the Government will, without much further ado, prevent the possibility of the movement going beyond the bounds of strictly private observance. Indeed, it is open to question whether the authorities could, without amendment of the existing law, alienate for the purpose of mixed nudism any of the beaches of the Colony, no matter where they may be situated. In decent exposure, "by bathing or otherwise near any public place or dwelling house" is an infringement of the Summary Offences Ordinance. The term "public place" is so comprehensively defined for the purposes of the Ordinance as to include "all piers, thoroughfares, streets, roads, lanes, alleys, courts, squares, archways, passages, paths, ways and places to which the public have access—either continuously or periodically, whether the same are the property of the Crown or private persons." It might be urged, of course, that a beach at some outlying spot is not a place to which the public ordinarily has access, but the fact remains that the public would have a right to visit such a spot, and, what is more, that it would be difficult to hide it from the gaze of people aloft. There is, moreover, the further point that, once the centre became known, persons of questionable moral tastes, or whom some are to be found in every community, would be attracted thereto, thus making it a centre which would, however much the devotees of the cult might resent the fact, have morally unhealthy reactions.

We are fully acquainted with all the stock arguments in favour of the movement; they do not impress us, especially in view of the emphasis which is being laid locally on the mixed character of the cult. There are in numerous parts of the world establishments where sun-bathing and other forms of nudism are practised, but with no mixing of the sexes, and under conditions which ensure the utmost privacy. If the local movement were of such a nature, no possible objection could be taken to it. But it is something totally different. The fact that mixed Naked Culture is permitted in certain parts of the world is neither here nor there. Against that we place the more compelling fact that Hongkong does not want to be associated with such a crazy fad. We may be old-fashioned, but we prefer to err, if at all, on the side of the proprieties. Not so long ago, at least two separate cases came before our magistrates in which coolies enjoying a bath en nature were fined for indecent exposure. In each instance, if we remember rightly, the men were alone. Yet they were held to have broken the law. If these convictions rested on a belief that public susceptibilities were outraged, what shall we say of the effects of a movement, both on the participants and on others who may be made aware of its activities, which seeks to establish mixed nudism on an organised scale in our midst?

Everybody's Hobby.

Although Mr. George Eastman whose tragic death was reported yesterday, could not claim to be the inventor of photography, few would question his right to a foremost place among the modern pioneers of the art. France celebrated the centenary of photography in July, 1925, commemorating the fact that in 1825, M. Joseph Nicéphore Niepce invented the Héliographie. In 1924, a memorial tablet was unveiled at the Royal Photographic Society, London, to the "Father of Photography," Henry Fox Talbot, who produced a permanent negative on paper in 1839. To these rival claims must be added those of Josiah Wedgwood and Sir Humphrey Davy, who obtained results by coating paper with a solution of silver nitrate prior to 1802. There may be cited, too, the invention of the Camera Obscura, ancestor of the modern Kodak, by J. D. Porta, in the year 1559, and it is worth recording that the first lens was discovered in the ruins of Nineveh and is now in the British Museum. For over fifty years from the production of the first negative, photography remained a mysterious art practised by professional specialists and a few amateurs whose enthusiasm carried them over the difficulties of the process. Outdoor photography was a toilsome and tedious exercise. The travelling outfit, for instance, included a bulky view camera, heavy tripod, equally heavy and burdensome plates, a dark tent for loading and sensitising plates before exposure, a nitrate bath, and even a water barrel. Mr. George Eastman, by his invention of the flexible roll

DAY BY DAY

IT HE DOES REALLY THINK THAT THERE IS NO DISTINCTION BETWEEN VIRTUE AND VICE, WHY, SIR, WHEN HE LEAVES OUR HOUSES LET US COUNT OUR SPOONS.—Samuel Johnson.

The staff and pupils of Quarry Bay School have heard invitations for the Spring Festival to be held at the school on Wednesday, March 23, at 11 a.m.

The President of the St. Patrick's Society of Hongkong, assisted by members of the Committee, will lay a wreath on the Cenotaph to-morrow, March 17, at 9.15 a.m.

The calendar of the University of Hongkong for 1932 has been published and is now on sale. The calendar includes interesting information concerning the University and full particulars of all the faculties. According to the calendar, the present enrolment is about 350, of whom 280 are Chinese, and 40 are women.

The Dutch steamer Tjinegara, which arrived in Hongkong yesterday from Sourabaya, had a very eventful voyage according to a report made at the Harbour Office by the master, Captain Weide. According to the report, one Chinese passenger died, and another jumped overboard, but the prompt measures were taken by the crew and he was rescued. Twins were born to a Chinese woman passenger. One was still-born and the other died about two hours later.

Banished last Saturday night, to Canton for a period of ten years, a young Chinese who returned to the Colony almost immediately after was arrested yesterday morning and brought before Mr. Wynne Jones at the Central Police Court to-day on a charge of breach of the Banishment Ordinance. Inspector E. A. Vincent informed his Worship that the defendant had just had a look at Canton and then returned to the Colony. Sentence of the one year's hard labour was imposed.

NO PERMIT FOR AIR RIFLE.

YOUTH FINED AT THE MAGISTRACY.

A young Chinese recently arrived from Batavia appeared before Mr. Wynne Jones at the Central Police Court this morning on a charge of being in possession of a B.S.A. air rifle without a permit from the Inspector General of Police.

Inspector F. Shaftain said the defendant was staying in a boarding house. Yesterday evening he was seen walking from the ship to the boarding house in Connaught Road carrying the rifle quite openly except that it was wrapped in a covering. The police were not taking a serious view of the case as he had only just arrived in Hongkong and was taking a friend. The police were not even pressing for the confiscation of the rifle. It was probable that if he applied he would be given a permit to take it out of the Colony.

A fine of $10 was imposed.

film in 1890, changed all this: the cumbersome equipment, with its tent and water bottles, soon gave place to the handy daylight-loading Kodak. From a secret art photography evolved into a readily understandable process that has become everybody's hobby.

"Hello, Dexter—the youngster is acting up again and I want you to give him a talking to."

THE BLIGHT OF SNOBBERY.
BY W.H.L.

SNOBBERY—what a host of bitter, humiliating memories the word can conjure up! How our cheeks burn at the recollection of some subtle cruelty recoiled from out of the dim past! No necessity, indeed, to delve into times gone by for examples of such inhuman ignorance, for the bete noire is a present-day reality which appears to have grown more and more prevalent in postwar times.

It is rampant to-day in our Universities amongst both students and professors, and heaven pity the needy student who does not affect an artificial status with which to disguise his poverty, for otherwise his life under the Alma Mater can be made in a thousand and one little ways a hell on earth.

Can the blame be laid on the shoulders of the present modern generation? Or, again, is it some foul offspring of the World War? God alone knows the source of snobbery. Our city of Edinburgh is credited with a large amount of snobbery, and surely there can be no denying it; indeed, one has only to visit our worthy but less beautiful neighbour Glasgow to note a striking difference. I am not going to deal with England, for we are really a different people with different temperaments. Therefore, let us deal with our air folks.

War Pals

I once visited Glasgow, it was round about Christmas I recollect, and was passing down Sauchiehall Street when I saw a sight I have never forgotten—that of a well-to-do business gentleman chatting pleasantly to a man selling matches, the pair, as I afterwards found out, having been together in the same regiment during the War. A more striking display of comradeship could scarcely be imagined, and I am told that this was no isolated exception. Without a doubt, Glasgow as a whole is by far a more natural city than ours; they have found a way to a certain happiness.

"Quite so," you reply, "the commercial spirit of course." That, however, is not the point at all. If the commercial men can adopt a "hail fellow well met" attitude, why not the professional? Professional superiority is greatly in evidence to-day, and is a canker which should be obliterated. There is no ignoring the clank of superiority which lawyers and accountants do in the presence of the ordinary business man—and yet where would they be but for the employment he provided? No Socialist or extremist am I who pens this indictment against such crass folly—merely one who has come through the mill slightly embittered and with a nasty taste in my mouth.

Love of Luxury

It would be of great interest if it were possible to obtain statistics of the number of people who starve their stomachs in order to indulge in fashionable luxuries. Possibly the figures would be surprising, especially so in the case of women.

I once read, I forget where, a quotation which said: "To be deliberately happy in this life, one must banish all thought." Who ever made that up? What he (or she) was talking about. A pity. It is not that we have to close our eyes and ears to the dirty, cheap little things that go on round about us. It seems to be the only way at present, however, otherwise life would become unbearable. The sensitive shut themselves away from the world and its people—hence we have that sorry figure, the recluse.

The remedy then is in our own hands, and if we were but to make the effort, life could be very much more pleasant than it is at present. But, and a great big "but" at that, to obtain success, entire co-operation, as with everything else, would be necessary.

Edinburgh, look to yourself; free yourself from the unsavoury reputation which is associated with your name; kill that "It isn't done" spirit and above all be yourself.

If this little article should lead to public thought, then indeed it will have not been in vain.

WHY BE PUNCTUAL?

By L. C. MOORE.

EVERY little circle of friends and relations is blessed (or, as they would say, cursed) with a timekeeper. It's an unofficial unpaid position, and those who are unlucky enough to hold it have a pretty thin time. Their friends tolerate them because they are necessary evils (although nobody would admit as much), but for sheer unpopularity they've got tennis club secretaries beaten to a frazzle.

I'm one of them. My chief fault is that I take clocks seriously. If someone invites me to dinner and says, "How about at seven?" then I get a real kick out of ringing the door bell just as the church clock is chiming the hour.

Unfortunately, however, no one else seems to have the same passion for punctuality; the other guests haven't arrived, and for about an hour I represent a problem to my host and his guests. They aren't nearly so ready themselves, yet they feel they must entertain me, and altogether things are rather strained. Common sense, I know, suggests that I should change my ways. I know that, because I've been told it so many times. But I can't, because I was born that way.

It is women who hate my punctuality most. If there are six clocks in the house, and they all say something different, a woman will believe the one that favours her most.

If the hands point to five-thirty, she will light-heartedly spend three-quarters of an hour on dressing, and expect to find the hands in the same position when she comes down. Cursed as I am, I call up at intervals of five minutes, and am always accused (a) of trying to frighten her, and (b) when she comes down and sees for herself, of having altered the hands. Punctuality in getting to places is bad enough, but the timekeeper makes himself even more unpopular when it comes to leaving.

A woman will tell her husband that if they go to the Browns' place they must leave not a minute later than ten; she's had quite enough late nights recently. Good enough. The punctual husband had been hoping to stay until eleven or so, but if ten is to be the time, that's O.K. with him.

When ten draws nigh his wife shows not the slightest sign of getting ready to go; she is probably in the middle of an involved conversation over mals, or whether one can buy French beans and still be patriotic. The wretched man clears his throat, looks at his watch several times, and at last interrupts the conversation. At which she tells him that it cannot possibly be ten yet, and will cheerfully argue that his watch and all the clocks in the house are wrong.

The man then has two options. Either he can behave like a cat on hot bricks until he gets his wife out of the house, or he can shrug his shoulders and say no more.

If he chooses the first they will leave about ten fifteen, and his wife will bully him all the way home for rushing away so.

If, on the other hand, he chooses the second option, they will leave about midnight, and his wife will bully him all the way home for keeping her there when she distinctly said she wanted to get away early.

DE VALERA'S
"REPUBLIC."*Oath of Allegiance To Go.*NEW CABINET.

London, Mar. 15.
"We propose to remove the Oath of Allegiance," declared President de Valera in the Dail to-day.
We have a mandate to remove it, he said, and we want every section of the community to be able to send representatives to the Dail without having to force their consciences by taking the Oath.
The statement was made in reply to a question regarding the release of Republican prisoners.
The Dail afterwards adjourned until April 20.

NEW CABINET.

President de Valera, who is also Foreign Minister, has selected his Cabinet as follows:
Mr. Sean O'Kelly, Vice-President and Minister of Local Government.
Mr. Sean Lemass, Minister of Industry and Commerce.
Mr. Sean MacEntee, Minister of Finance.
Dr. James Ryan, Minister of Agriculture.
Mr. Frank Aiken, Minister of Defence.
Mr. Thomas Derris, Minister of Education.
Mr. James Geoghegan, Minister of Justice.
Mr. Joseph Connolly, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs.
Mr. Patrick Rutledge, Minister of Land and Fisheries.

OLD POLICE
PENSIONER.*EX-SERGEANT MAJOR SUCCUMBS.

An old pensioner of the Chinese contingent of the Hongkong Police Force passed away at his residence at 68, Main Street, Aberdeen, yesterday afternoon in the person of Chan Sik-cheung, formerly a sergeant major in the Force.
The late Chan Sik-cheung was about 65 years of age and first joined the police in 1885. Through the usual channels of promotion he attained the rank of sergeant major and in June, 1930, was invalided out after 35 years' service.
He was a very popular officer and was highly respected by his superiors and subordinates alike.

ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY.*HEALTH TRIP TO RIVIERA.

London, Mar. 15.
The Archbishop of Canterbury, on medical advice, is going to the South of France next week.
It is officially stated that the Archbishop's general health is excellent, but slight rheumatism persists.
Dr. Lang has been troubled with minor illnesses on several occasions since he was appointed to Canterbury four years ago.

CLEARING HOUSE
SYSTEM.*OF NO ADVANTAGE TO BRITAIN.

London, Mar. 15.
Mr. Walter Runciman was questioned in the House of Commons to-day as to the proposed Franco-Hungarian agreement to provide a Clearing House arrangement for mutual liquidation of the export trade, and said that after full consideration the Government had reached the conclusion that no Clearing House system yet devised would be of advantage to British trade. He did not think any such system would eliminate the handicap of exchange restrictions in existence on the continent.

FORCED LABOUR PRODUCTS.*PROPOSED BAN BY BRITAIN.

London, Mar. 15.
In the House of Commons to-day, under the ten-minutes' rule, Commander Locker Lampson was given leave to introduce a bill to prohibit the importation of goods made by forced labour.
The Bill was brought in and formally read a first time.

TSANG FOO VILLA
MURDERS.*GOVERNMENT GRANT
TO CHILDREN.*VOTE OF $15,000.

Interesting items are contained in the votes which are to come before the Finance Committee of the Legislative Council for approval on Thursday.
A sum of $15,000 is asked as an ex gratia payment to the surviving children of Yamashita Sumijiro who was murdered by a mob during the anti-Japanese riots at Tsang Foo Villa in September last, and to any dependents of the murdered maid-servant, to be paid through the Japanese Consul General.

Another vote is for $14,066 as compensation to Mr. Noel Instone Brewer. This is the equivalent of £1,000. It is explained that as a result of the investigation by the Secretary of State and his legal advisers and by the Executive Council into the conviction and sentence to four months' imprisonment without hard labour of Mr. Brewer, a free pardon has been granted by H.E. the Governor.

Another sum is of $2,500 for legal defence of certain police officers concerned in a raid upon a house suspected of being a common gaming house. The action of these officers was questioned, and serious charges were brought against them. The complainants retained counsel to conduct the prosecution, and it was considered advisable that the police officers should be similarly represented. The complainants failed to appear in Court and the case against the police officers was dismissed.

FRENCH SURTAX OPPOSED.*BRITAIN OBJECTS ON PRINCIPLE.

London, Mar. 15.
In the course of Parliamentary answers to-day, Mr. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, said the Government had made it clear to the French Government that it took exception in principle to the imposition of the French surtax on any British goods.

He also said the question was being considered of making representations to the Portuguese Government regarding a recent decree increasing the duties by 20 per cent. on most descriptions of goods.

THE OTTAWA
CONFERENCE.*BRITISH DELEGATION NOT CHOSEN.

London, Mar. 15.
The Prime Minister to-day stated that almost immediately after the Government was formed, a Cabinet Committee was appointed to supervise preparations for the Ottawa Conference so far as the Government in the United Kingdom was concerned. It had been continuously at work since then.

The composition of the United Kingdom delegation to Ottawa had not yet been considered by the Cabinet.

NEW AERODROME
VOTE.*ANOTHER $20,000
REQUIRED.

At Thursday's meeting of the Legislative Council, the Colonial Secretary will move:

"That this Council approves of the expenditure of a further sum of $20,000 on the Kai Tak aerodrome hangar during the financial year 1932 which sum shall be met from a future loan and shall meanwhile be charged as an advance from the surplus balances of the Colony."

Charging a Swatow Chinese before Mr. Wynne Jones at the Central Police Court this morning with begging, Inspector F. Shaftain informed his Worship that the defendant had been in the Colony for only five days. He stated that the soldiers in Swatow had attempted to arrest him to work as a coolie in Shanghai, but he objected and ran away. His Worship informed the defendant that he would get into trouble if he started begging in Hongkong, and registered a caution.

CRACKER FIRING
DANGER.*SEQUEL TO VICTORY
CELEBRATIONS.

The Deputy Inspector General of Police, Mr. P. T. J. Wodehouse, C.I.E., prosecuted the occupiers of the three floors of 71, Wyndham Street, before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning, for firing crackers without a permit from the S.C.A. The ground and first floors of the building, which is opposite Mr. Wodehouse's quarters at the Central Police Station, are occupied by the Tien Nam Yat Po, a Chinese daily newspaper, while the top floor is a Chinese girls' school.
Mr. Wodehouse stated that the incident occurred on March 4, during the Chinese celebration of events at Shanghai. This had followed the first celebration on February 20, when the police took no action, rightly or wrongly, considering that the population should be allowed to "blow off steam."

On the second celebration on March 4, Mr. Wodehouse continued, the firing of crackers was not so general, being more or less of a sporadic nature. The house of the present summons was situated at the corner of Wyndham Street and Arbuthnot Road, at a spot much used by motorists and pedestrians. He pointed out that while for the sake of convenience, the prosecution was undertaken in the form of summonses, charging the defendants with having failed to obtain permits, on the other hand danger to the public from this indiscriminate firing of crackers at a spot much used by traffic was quite evident, and it was this aspect which he wished to take up with the Court. He had kept the house under observation for twenty minutes, during which the street was just one blaze of crackers, thrown from the floors. Four motor-cars during that period passed under this rain of exploding crackers.
To the mistress of the girls' school who responded to one of the summonses, Mr. Schofield pointed out the dangerous possibility of a driver being blinded and of the fatal results that might accrue from it. He indicted a fine of $25.

Summonses against the Tien Nam Yat Po, in respect of the alleged offence committed from both the floors they occupy, are to be reserved as the defendants were absent, their case being adjourned until Monday.

MODERN WATER WORKS.*WUCHOW SYSTEM GOING AHEAD.

Wuchow, March 14.
The work connected with the installation of a modern system in Wuchow is rapidly gaining headway.

At present the workmen are connecting up homes and stores along the streets where the water mains have previously been laid. It is hoped that the new system will solve the water problems of the city, and that fire hazard will also be minimized, because of the ample supply and the pressure of water which the new system will make possible.

LYTTON MISSION IN SHANGHAI.*READY TO BE OF SERVICE.

Shanghai, Mar. 15.
Speaking at a tiffin given by Mr. Quo Tai-chi, the Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs, to-day, Lord Lytton said:

"We have come as envoys, as representatives of the League, to place at your disposal all the resources of the League, to offer you its help and assistance in any way in which you can tell us it can be of service in this particular crisis."

"But I must remind you that the League is not a super State; it cannot impose its will upon members who do not require its assistance. The League has no effective answer to force. It is an alternative to force."

He added that if China and Japan were willing to accept an alternative, he believed it would prove a help and advantage to both countries.

Mr. Wu's Outburst.

Mr. Wu Teh-chien declared that when the Commissioners visited Wuchow, Kiangwan, and Chapei they would see for themselves "how thoroughly the Japanese war machine has accomplished its mission of wanton destruction," and concluded:
"The Japanese policy for the domination of China since the fateful evening of September 18 has not undergone one iota of change." But China, he said, continued to look to the League for justice.

Rumour of Obstruction.

Questioned by Reuter concerning sensational rumours that the new Government of Manchuria was taking steps to prevent the League Commissioners from going thither, or at least to obstruct their investigations, Lord Lytton said he had nothing to substantiate such reports.

Mutineers Concentrate.

Tokyo, Mar. 15.

THE COSMIC RAY.*BALLOONS' PART IN EXPERIMENTS.

Pasadena (Cal.).
Small balloons, with delicate scientific instruments attached, are to be sent 10 miles, or more above the earth, and from the results obtained man may know whether he is living in a universe that is dying or one that is growing.

Dr. Robert A. Millikan, head of the California Institute of Technology, has revealed his plan to send the balloons into the stratosphere in order to study the "cosmic ray."

The purpose of the experiments will be to learn whether the "cosmic ray" has its origin in the construction of the material universe, as he now believes or if the rays signal the universe's destruction, as Sir James Jeans believes.

Sir James holds that the "cosmic rays" are the "death walls" of the universe, having their origin in the breaking up of the universe's distant matter. Dr. Millikan, taking the view that they are the "birth cries" of the universe, believes the rays have origin in the formation of matter.

CHARITY FOOTBALL.

ASSISTANCE FOR WIDOW OF MILITARY SERGEANT.

Charity football matches, the proceeds to be donated to Mrs. Mullen, the widow of Q. M. S. Mullen, who died in Hongkong recently, will be staged by the Hongkong Football Association on Saturday, April 2, on the Hongkong Football Club ground at Happy Valley.

Tentative arrangements for these games were made by the Council at their monthly meeting last evening. It was decided that two matches be arranged, the more important between the pick of the Service players and a representative side chosen from civilian footballers, to commence at 4.30 p.m.

The other match, between the Services and civilian players appearing in the Second and Third Divisions of the League, will start at 2.30 p.m. The Council selected a date that would not, they hoped, clash with other important engagements, so that a large crowd could attend the two matches.

HANDSARD AS A BEST SELLER.

REPRINT NEEDED OF OFFICIAL REPORT.

Feb. 16.
"Handsard.—The official report of the proceedings and debates of the House of Parliament: colloquial as having been compiled for a long period by Messrs. Handsard. Also transcribed.
Not, you will observe, "colloquial" as the Dictionary is too prosaic for that.
Yet such is the hard, cold fact. Handsard, like Mr. J. R. Priestley, is a best seller.
On Saturday the Stationery Office sold out the entire issue of Handsard for the previous day; and it was disclosed yesterday that this is not the first time that such an occurrence has been known.

Last Friday the debate took place on the Children Bill. So avid was the general public to devour the wisdom of Parliamentary lips on the topic of oppressed children that hard-worked officials on the following day were hard put to it to garner in the sixpences which were hurled across the counter for the right to enjoy it.
Reprint orders were at once put in, and before there was a chance that the oratory-creed men and women should learn of their danger, fresh supplies were on the way.

"Sold Out."

But—and here's the rub—Handsard has sold out over and over again. During the troublous days of the Simon Commission, every debate of the topic of India was eagerly

SUNDAY FOOTBALL.

AN ASSOCIATION FORMED.

Fourteen amateur football leagues and a number of football organizations representing nearly 500 amateur clubs has met in London and formed a National Sunday Football Association.

A council of 32 was appointed to make rules.
Representatives of numerous clubs expressed dissatisfaction with the present regulations, whereby clubs affiliated to the Football Association are debarred from Sunday play.
The next move will be for clubs to express opinions upon the best method of establishing Sunday football, and a meeting of representatives of leagues throughout the country is to be held.

absorbed as it came hot from the press. Supplies ran out, and some were actually kept waiting for their copies.

Now and again a Budget debate has left supply falling lamentably on the heels of demand, and it is a frequent occurrence for supplies only to reach a bare sufficiency.

Eager to satisfy the just cravings of a yearning public, the Stationery Office endeavours to estimate in advance the number of copies which are likely to be asked for on the following day, and, rarely, indeed, do they err in their judgment.

Often, it is true, they find that a sudden rush has taken them unawares, but they are able to place reprint orders in time to avoid depriving faithful readers of their light refreshment.

SINGAPORE BASE.

ANXIETY AT THE ADMIRALTY.

London, Mar. 15.
The Admiralty is growing anxious about the construction of the Singapore Base, where the state of affairs is not at all satisfactory. The problem is now engaging the earnest attention of the First Lord of the Admiralty.

This statement was made in the House of Commons to-day by Captain D. Euan Wallace, the Civil Lord of the Admiralty. In the course of debate on the Navy Estimates.

Jackson Contract Not Enough.
Captain Wallace explained that although £7,750,000 appeared in

One of the divers working on the vehicular ferry pier in Hongkong, coming up for a breather.

The Estimates, the Government's present commitments were £4,036,000 to the contractors, Sir T. Jackson, Limited, but if only the work under the Jackson contract was completed there would be no satisfactory naval base.

The contractors were making excellent progress and there was no reason to suppose that the firm's work would not be finished when it was due, namely, in 1935.

Admiralty Anxiety.

The financial stringency of the past few years had, however, placed us in such a position that we had not got the plans made for the construction of a fully equipped and up-to-date Base at Singapore.

Hence, said Captain Wallace, the Admiralty's anxiety.—Reuter.

The present stage of progress in the construction of the Hongkong pier for the vehicular ferry service is shown in the photograph above.

THE VEHICULAR FERRY.

CONTRACTS NOT YET SIGNED.

BIG ORDER FOR ENGLAND.

That the institution of a vehicular ferry between Hongkong and Kowloon will by 1933 be an accomplished fact is indicated by the recent revelation that the Hongkong and Yau-mat Ferry Company has successfully tendered for the service.

It was stated this morning that no indication can at the present be given as to the amount of the tender, as the contracts have not yet been signed.

It is understood, however, that an order has been placed with the Hongkong and Whampoa Dock Company for the building of the three boats, but the cost of this work cannot yet be divulged.

It is further stated that an order has been given to Messrs. Dodwell and Company for the supply of Gardner engines for the vessels, and that this firm has despatched an order to England for the supply of these and other equipment to the value of £60,000.

The ferry service will, if possible, commence operations as from January 1st, 1933, and the Government is granting the exclusive maintenance thereof for a period of fifteen years from that date.

The Routes.

The ferries are to run between Jubilee Street Pier and Jordan Road Pier; Jubilee Street Pier and Mongkok Pier; and Jubilee Street Pier and Samshui Pier.

It is laid down, under the terms of the tender, that the licensing of any other ferries between any other frontages, or between one of the mentioned frontages and some other frontage, will not infringe on the licensee's rights, and he can make no claim in respect of any other such ferry.

Ten-Knot Craft.

The vessels for the service, other than special type 'vessels', are to have a service speed of not less than 10 knots. The special type vessels must be fitted with Diesel engines. The ordinary vessels must during the first year be sufficient in number to maintain a ten-minute service and have accommodation for not less than 250 passengers. During the second and subsequent years must be sufficient to cope with all traffic requirements.

Proposed Fares.

The proposed passenger fares are: 10 cents, first class; 4 cents, second class; and 2 cents third class. One driver to each commercial vehicle will be allowed to travel free; chauffeurs of private cars will be charged five cents per head.

Amongst the other charges are: Motor-cycle, 20 cents; motor-cycle and sidecar, 60 cents; motor-car not exceeding one ton, $1; motor-car not exceeding 30 cwt. $1.50; motor-car exceeding 30 cwt. $2; lorry not exceeding one ton, $1; lorry exceeding one ton, $1 for first ton and 50 cents for each additional ton.

Royalty Conditions.

A fixed monthly rent or sum and royalties, and, as an alternative to royalties, an annual payment based on the profits of the undertaking, had to be offered by the tenderer. The royalties shall be in respect of every passenger or vehicle carried. Details were given in the tender specifications of the manner in which the percentage of profits, as an alternative to royalties, shall be computed.

Must Be British.

The tenderers, if individuals, had to be British subjects, or, if firms or companies, the majority of the partners or directors must be British subjects. The management and staff, or the effective majority thereof, to the satisfaction of the Governor-in-Council, had also to be British subjects, and the control must be within the Colony and be essentially British.

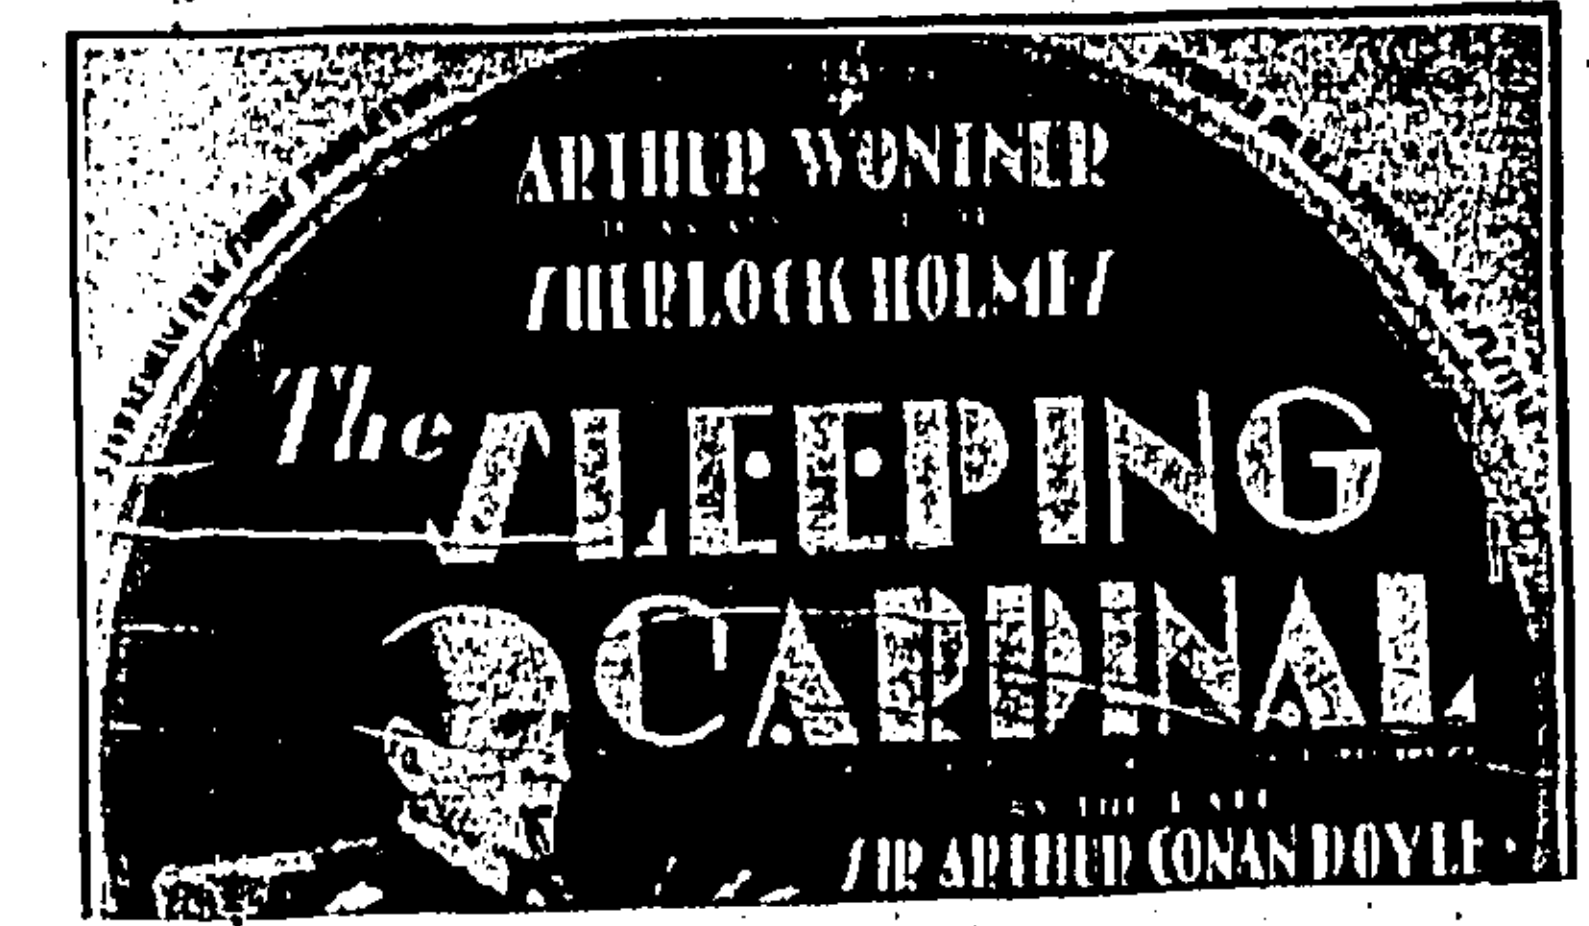

Amongst the passengers who left by the Blue Funnel liner Sarpedon for home were Mr. and Mrs. R. E. O. Bird, Mr. F. J. Dowley, and Mr. G. G. McIntosh.
